Mine Riches Surpassing B.C.'s Forests

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Donald Brothers is on his way towards making mineral production the number one industry in British Columbia.

The 43-year-old lawyer from Trill announced last May he had his eye set on nudging the giant forest products industry out of first place as B.C.'s top money maker.

On Wednesday, when he announced a new all-time high mineral production record of $331,700,000 had been set this year, he thought he was close to achieving that goal.

"I'll bet you by the end of this year we'll be as close to them (forest products) as possible, if not ahead. But we'll have to wait until the end of the fiscal year which ends in March, when all the figures are in," said Mr. Brothers.

IT'S SPECTACULAR

"It's spectacular, almost unbelievable, what has happened since I became minister 2½ years ago," he said in an interview.

"Gross mineral production was then about $225,000,000 and we had no idea it would reach $300,000,000 in this short a period."

"And if the oil industry can drill wells this winter which will indicate the Alberta Rainbow field extends into northeastern British Columbia, the sky's the limit — there's no telling where we can go from here."

B.C.'s Bank Plans Win Royal Stamp

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than two years of parliamentary delays, the private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia became law Wednesday.

The measure received royal assent from Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, shortly after the Senate concurred with amendments passed earlier by the Commons.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The new Bank of Western Canada has received its certificate from the Treasury Board in Ottawa, president James E. Coyne announced Wednesday. The certificate was the last major official requirement to be met before the bank opens.

Vancouver Mayoral Shocker

Campbell Winner

VANCOUVER (Special) — Favored Mayor William Rathie apparently went down to defeat Wednesday in a two-way race for reelection.

The mayor-elect will be Tom Campbell, the only member of Vancouver's retiring city council from the sprawling east end of Canada's third largest community.

With all 102 polls reported, Campbell had 41,873 votes and Rathie 39,843—a margin of almost 1,200 for the young alderman.

The third mayoral candidate, 21-year-old socialist Jean Rands, had 6,004.

Election officials said about 33 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots.

Vancouver was for the first time electing all of its civic officials at once—mayor, aldermen and parks and school leaders.

Air Dispute Report Ignored

GRITS WON'T GIVE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government stood off an angry opposition attack in an emergency Commons debate Wednesday and refused to back down from its determination to outlaw a countrywide strike of air traffic controllers set for next Tuesday.

Revenue Minister Benson and Transport Minister Pickersgill said flatly the cabinet will not agree to the controllers' demands—supported by opposition critics—for adoption of a wage report made last month by Judge John B. Robinson.

Mr. Benson, who was to continue negotiations with the controllers Wednesday night, said adoption of the judge's wage formula would mean a 40-per-cent pay increase for the 800 control tower men over the last two years.

MEET AGAIN

The Wednesday night negotiations went on for 2½ hours and the parties agreed to meet again this afternoon. Mr. Benson stayed in his office awaiting a break in the deadlock, but did not personally attend the meeting.

He said progress is being made in the renewed negotiations.

The emergency debate erupted after the government gave notice of its plans to introduce legislation outlawing the strike and to seek overtime sittings Friday night and Saturday in order to get it through Parliament.

Details were not revealed.

Actress Dies

Popular character actress Verna Felton, best known for her role in long-running TV series December Bride, died at 76 in North Hollywood Wednesday after suffering a stroke. Born in California, she lived in Nanaimo as a girl and often appeared in Victoria. See story, Page 37.

Commissioner Rules

Bug Tape Contents To Be Aired

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commissioner R. A. Sargent ruled Wednesday the tape recordings of bugged conversations at the Nov. 4-7 convention of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada will be made public.

He said counsel at the royal commission inquiry into the bugging and members of the press will be allowed to listen to the tapes. He ruled Tuesday that he would hear the tapes.

The commissioner made his decision after a lengthy argument from union lawyer John Laxton, who submitted that the inquiry's terms of reference did not give him the power to hear the tapes.

The six reels were seized Nov. 7 from room 309 of the Ritz Hotel. Private detectives Bud Graham and Richard Griffin said they recorded conversations picked up by hidden transmitters in second-floor rooms occupied by union delegates.

Mr. Graham said earlier he was hired to spy on the union by Pat O'Neal, western regional organizer of the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

WANTED EVIDENCE

He said he was first approached by Cpl. Harry Reed and Constable E. P. Oulette of the RCMP security and intelligence branch, then by Mr. O'Neal, who wanted evidence of a conspiracy against his union.

Mr. Laxton said the Canadian union did not want to appear to have something to hide in objecting to the playing of tapes, but said the hearing of the tapes would amount to an invasion of privacy.

"It would be denying the validity of the premise on which the inquiry is based—that the invasion of privacy is improper," the lawyer said.

Guilty—of Possession

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former Vancouver policeman was found guilty Wednesday night of possession of part of the $1,200,000 in mutilated money stolen from a Vancouver warehouse in February 1965.

Convicted was Joseph Percival, 37. He will be sentenced Friday.

The B.C. Supreme Court jury returned a not guilty verdict on a similar charge against James McDougall, 32, a former Vancouver real estate salesman.

Earlier Wednesday, Mr.

Justice Victor Dryer directed the jury to return a not guilty verdict on charges against the two men of robbing a Canadian Pacific Merchandising Services warehouse of the money.

Most of the bills had been punched with three dime-size holes and the money was destined for Ottawa to be destroyed.

The men were arrested in Edmonton earlier this year and a portion of the mutilated money was recovered in the room.

All but $15,000 of the money was recovered in Victoria.

Jets Came with Scream

from Agence France-Presse
HANOI — This North Vietnamese capital city was once more plunged into war

Bridge Hit

SAIGON (UPI)—A mile-long bridge which reaches into the Hanoi city limits was struck by explosives during U.S. air raids over North Vietnamese capital, informed sources said today.

The bridge, which carries both civilian and military traffic, was hit during the first of two successive air attacks on the Hanoi area, with the American bombing raids of Tuesday and Wednesday — the longest, the most violent and perhaps the most menacing to the future of this city's people. (See Page 3.)

The people Wednesday relived the tension and danger first experienced when Hanoi was bombed last June and July and when defences first were put to the test.

Discipline and vigilance now have become a national duty. Within a minute of the sirens wailing their alert, civilians took shelter in silk trenches. Lines of bicycles and pedicabs were abandoned, as were two precious baskets of bananas underneath my hotel window by a peasant woman.

From every house men rushed out wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles. They took up positions behind trees and watched the first aircraft approach. I saw my hotel barman turn soldier as he loaded his gun and prepared to take aim at the raiders.

Hanoi Had Defence Plan All Prepared With Discipline, Vigilance Everywhere

The sirens gave plenty of warning — as soon as the aircraft had come within 20-30 kilometers (12-21 miles).

Watching the raid with me from the hall of the hotel were two Indian and one Polish member of the International Commission. Air raid defence personnel drove away all observers during the raid. An official interpreter came to my second-floor balcony and said to me politely but firmly — "you are a foreigner, we are responsible for your safety to the press service of the ministry of foreign affairs."

Then the raid began. The first wave was heralded by a crescendo of screaming which became almost unbearable as the flight of aircraft passed over the centre of the city. The anti-aircraft guns, which and James MacAuley, for the RCMP officers, and Bryan Williams, representing the international union, argued that the tapes should be played with the commissioner and all legal counsel present, but with the press excluded.

Commissioner George Murray said there were two fundamental principles involved. The first, he said, was that there are no laws at present giving a person a right to privacy.

The second was that the commission was set up under the Public Inquiries Act.

"It's not a private inquiry act,"

Private investigator Angus Macdonald, a former Vancouver police drug squad member, told the inquiry about the range of bugging devices on the open market.

Mr. Macdonald said he was hired to de-bug the convention by the Canadian union, and later to de-bug the union's Burnaby headquarters.

He explained he had one of the "better collections" of bugging devices, including a sugarcube-sized microphone - transmitter with an effective range of about two blocks.

Another device, he said, could be attached to a telephone line, and would record all incoming and outgoing calls for eight days.

He told of a microphone like a spike, that could be pushed into a wall to make recordings.

and of a transmitter that could be carried to scramble voices in a crowd.

"This is to prevent people from bugging you," he said. "California call girls use it."

B.C. Telephone Co. representatives testified that under no circumstances did the company condone wiretapping.

The inquiry continues.

Victoria Cross To Viet Aussie

CANBERRA (Reuters) — The Queen has awarded the Victoria Cross posthumously to an Australian soldier for bravery in South Vietnam. It was announced Wednesday.

The medal is the highest recognition of valor given in the Commonwealth.

It went to Warrant Officer

Kevin Arthur (Dasher) Wheat-

ley, 28, of the Australian army training team in Vietnam, who was killed Nov. 13, 1965.

The award's citation, released by Prime Minister Harold Holt, said Wheatley refused to abandon another warrant officer who was wounded during a battle in Province.

When Pregnant Don't Write —Go and See Your Doctor

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am two months pregnant. At what month should I stop wearing a tight girdle or garter belt? — MRS. P.H.

Any time it feels uncomfortable.

But you shouldn't be asking me. Every woman should start going to her own physician as soon as she thinks she is pregnant.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any danger of contracting venereal diseases from clothing bought at rummage sales? Does dry cleaning or washing make them safe? — C.E.

Your Good Health

The risk even if the clothes aren't dry cleaned or washed is about as close to zero as you can get. Mere dryness would destroy most germs in a very short time. But after cleaning or washing (which in any case should be done) the clothing will be entirely safe.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and I have gall stones. Since there's no pain, but only what seems like bad indigestion from eating fatty foods, I hesitate to have my gall bladder removed. Do you think it would be foolish to wait and hope that the stones can be dissolved? — MRS. J.B.

Yes, it probably would be foolish. When stones are present they can cause trouble, and that is why doctors usually recommend removal.

Some patients insist on waiting, despite this advice. If subsequently a stone lodges in the duct, the pain is such that they wish they hadn't waited.

The gall bladder isn't always removed when stones are found, but it is usually good practice to do so.

Dear Dr. Molner: The father of the girl I want to marry is my full cousin. Some people say this is not good — that if we have children they may be deformed or retarded. — S.Y.

Not necessarily deformed or retarded, but with such a close relationship, in terms of genetics, children by inheriting some minor weakness from both parents can have a major weakness. In other words, there is some risk.

Only Military Feels Attack

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command in this capital of South Vietnam weighed pilots' reports against Communist charges Wednesday night that American bombers ranging over North Vietnam raided populated areas of Hanoi two days in a row.

The defence department in Washington reissued Wednesday a statement it gave Tuesday in response to the initial bombing charges.

MILITARY ONLY
"U.S. policy is to attack military targets only. The only targets scheduled for attack in the Hanoi area during the past 24 hours were military targets which had been previously struck."

A U.S. state department spokesman went a step farther. Asked at a press conference whether the U.S. has bombed Hanoi, press officer Robert J. McCloskey replied: "We have not. . . . I take the question to mean civilian targets and population."

HUNDRED CASUALTIES
North Vietnam claimed 100 persons in Hanoi were killed or injured in the two days of bombing on which it had now protested to the International Control Commission made up of representatives from Canada, India and Poland.

In ground action in South Vietnam Wednesday Viet Cong guerrillas inflicted heavy casualties on a detachment of U.S. marines and South Vietnamese troops at separate outposts south of Da Nang before dawn. No figures were announced on specific losses.

Other reports from the field in South Vietnam:

● U.S. headquarters said a shell exploded within the barrel of a howitzer Wednesday during firing by an artillery battery five miles northwest of Tay Ninh City, killing two American soldiers and wounding two.

● Three South Vietnamese civilians were killed and two wounded five miles east of Saigon Tuesday night by four artillery shells or mortar rounds. Their origin—whether enemy or not—was undetermined.

● The toll from the accidental bombing Tuesday of the village of Thon-Ply Gia by a U.S. Marine Phantom jet was reported to have risen to five South Vietnamese civilians dead and three wounded. The North Vietnamese, charging that U.S. jets bombed Hanoi and its suburbs Wednesday for the second day in a row, broadcast a claim that eight planes, including a pilotless reconnaissance craft, were shot down.

There was no immediate comment from the U.S. command on the Wednesday operations.

As for the Communist claim that American bombs fell within Hanoi Tuesday, destroying buildings and killing some women and children, American authorities said they could neither confirm nor deny it. But the objectives of the day, they said, were the railway yards six miles northeast of Hanoi and a

Campus Arsenal Raided by Army

CARACAS (UPI) — Army troops Wednesday occupied Central University and seized an arsenal of weapons ranging from hand grenades to machine guns.

The troops, in combat gear, clashed briefly with students trying to block their entry. One soldier was killed in a gun battle on the campus and a high school student was wounded in the leg by a stray bullet.

An army helicopter which hovered over the campus while the action was going on was fired on by a tommy-gunner. It was not hit.

Soldiers with rifles and tommy-guns occupied the principal buildings and sealed off the seven-mile-square campus and surrounding area. No one was permitted in or out.

A number of students were arrested.

The university, hitherto immune from police or troop action, has long been a hideout for Communist terrorists and agitators.

No Easy Solution

THE DECISION of the United States government to give its unqualified support to the British plan to impose mandatory but limited trade sanctions against the illegal Rhodesian regime immeasurably strengthens the United Kingdom's position in a problem fraught with dangers and complexities.

The complexities of the situation arise from the fact that the chosen course of action must not only succeed in crippling Rhodesian trade to the extent that it eventually topples the Smith administration but must also avoid an economic confrontation with South Africa while at the same time resisting mounting Afro-African demands for the use of military force to subjugate the rebellious colony.

The matter is further complicated by the hypocritical attitude adopted by most of the leading protagonists. Perhaps the least sanctimonious of the nations participating directly in this unfolding diplomatic drama is Great Britain. She, at least, had the honesty to announce to the world at large that she would be prepared to go to the limit of sanctions against Rhodesia—as long as they did not affect her trade with South Africa.

On the other hand the most unctuous of the other nations personally involved is Zambia whose foreign minister abused Britain before the UN Security Council last week for not advocating full-scale sanctions against Rhodesia as a prelude to military invasion.

However, though Mr. Simon Kapwepwe's 40-minute diatribe against the British policy contained such insults as "two-faced," "iniquitous," "racist," and "criminal," it failed to mention that Zambia itself still continues to trade with Rhodesia (in defiance of the earlier British-initiated sanctions) to the extent of several million dollars a year.

Nor does Zambia's selfless posture as a champion of Rhodesia's 4,500,000 Africans stand up too well if related to her personal interest in maintaining her copper sales on the world market. Inasmuch as her whole economy is based on her copper production (which reached 12 per cent of the world's total in 1965) any serious curtailment of its export would result in Zambia's financial collapse.

Also worthy of consideration in the view of present events and policies is the fact that the Zambian copper mines are owned by British, American and South African interests.

In the light of these conflicting purposes it would appear that a successful solution of the Rhodesian affair is far from being just around the corner.

Senatorial Blather

BY MAKING PUBLIC the contents of a scathing letter he has written Rear-Admiral William Landymore, Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot reveals that the depth of his misunderstanding of the present armed forces dispute is only exceeded by the extent of his ignorance of the facts of history.

In his letter Senator Pouliot not only accuses the admiral of "overlooking the fact that both world wars have been won by the allied armies under the united command of Marshal Foch and General Eisenhower" but expresses his regret that the admiral was not court-martialed by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

In his reference to the Allied commanders-in-chief of two world wars the senator makes it painfully obvious he is unaware that Rear-Admiral Landymore supports integration of the command structure—as exemplified by Marshal Foch and General Eisenhower—but opposes the unification of the three separate arms of our military forces.

Neither Marshal Foch nor General Eisenhower attempted to do this. Both, in fact, were content to give the orders and let each service carry out its specialized role.

Under Foch and Eisenhower not only were the three services allowed to retain their own individualities but the various Allied forces under their command were permitted to maintain their own national character by fighting under their own unit commanders, in their own uniforms and flying their own flags.

The senator would vastly broaden his knowledge of this if he took the trouble to read the glorious page of Canadian history which describes how General Sir Arthur Currie fought and won the battle for the Canadian Corps to retain its own national identity in the First World War instead of allowing it to become unified with the British army.

With regard to his expressed dismay that Rear-Admiral Landymore was not court-martialed for publicly opposing Mr. Hellyer's policy, Senator Pouliot would be advised to check the record. If he does so he will find that the admiral had been fired by the defence minister some considerable time before he made any statement outlining his views.

And, happily, so far, Mr. Hellyer's vast powers do not extend to court-martialing private Canadian citizens. A blessing perhaps even Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot—for all his confusion—may yet live to appreciate.

Splendid Response

A WELCOME Christmas present to the Community Chest agencies comes with the news that the United Appeal has gone over the top. When the final details are tidied up the record will show that the objective of this year's Red Feather campaign, $452,000, has been reached.

This is a highly satisfactory result which ensures that the 21 agencies concerned, obligated to the valuable welfare and community activities they cover, can go forward for the next 12 months without depletion of the budgets upon which they must operate to meet the needs they represent.

The success of the appeal is a fine commendation of the generosity of the people of the Greater Victoria environs embraced in the campaign. They have risen to the challenge of an objective higher than last year because of escalating costs, and answered it with good heart and will.

Congratulations are also in order to the officials directing the Chest campaign and to the patient volunteer canvassers whose efforts have met with the required response. The team work and co-operation of all involved have been admirable.

This region has proven once again that it is Good Samaritan in spirit and character and ready to do all it can when called upon to sustain works of humanitarian virtue.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

I never read or view a who-dun-it without thinking that the official forces of law and order are pretty hard done by. Seldom do they get either the man or the glory; in fact they are usually maligned as dimwits unable to solve any mystery on their own.

The small screen, for instance, and the bookshops are literally crawling with private eyes.

Eyes in this context is somewhat of a misnomer, for most of these chaps don't need their eyes so much as a knockout punch that Cassius Clay might envy. If it were not for the felicity with which they beat up the ne'er-do-wells one wonders sometimes if they'd ever get to the bottom of a case.

Incidentally it will be a historic moment when the villain is downed with a single punch. Instead of the obvious you-hit-me-and-I'll-hit-you routine.

It is in keeping with my theories that there should be a mystery about mysteries, I suppose, and this is one realm in which truth is certainly not stranger than fiction. For the truth about detective work in reality is that it is not the amateur who turns up trump but the old pro who may have started out as a policeman on the beat.

One doubts if a single crime of any magnitude was ever solved except through the ingenuity of the professionals. The mystery about who-dun-it, therefore, is why it has been long a standing fashion for authors to pick their detective heroes from the ranks of private eyes. Logic would suggest the opposite, even though the thesis that no one knows a job like the person who has never done it, seems persuasive.

The common or garden fact is that the person trained to it is the real professional, whether the job be laying bricks, nuclear energy or catching villains.

Authors need a free hand, of course, and were they permitted to official police procedures this might expose their ignorance, or cramp their style. It is much more convenient to have the police sidelined while the private eye, a genius naturally, does their work for them.

Not being an authority on crime fiction I don't know who began this downgrading of official crime investigation, but ever since Sherlock Holmes' intellect was allegedly superior to that of ordinary police, authors have run riot. Edgar Wallace, if memory serves, seems to have been the only big time who-dun-it writer to give the police an even break.

A pity, though, since private eyes are so omniscient, that Holmes, Father Brown, the Saint—not to mention Perry Mason who although a counsel-at-law has all the attributes of a private-eye (how one waits in suspense for the day he loses a case)—and the rest of them hadn't joined the professionals.

If their creators can be believed they'd have shot to the top of the tree anyway. There is one disadvantage about being a professional, however. He must stick to the rules. A private eye can make his own, and very suspect some of these are too. Isn't it strange nevertheless how so many crime authors depict the police as chumps when it's to the police they'd run for help if ever they became involved in a real who-dun-it?

Latin America

accounts for more than half of all the area's shipments.

Latin American industrial development depends on foreign exchange earnings to pay for import of capital goods "and despite efforts to hasten structural change in the separate economies, agricultural exports will continue for a long time to provide the greater part of foreign exchange earnings," Yudeiman says.

The report recommends sharply increased investments in Latin American agriculture. The $347.8 million lent by the Inter American Development Bank in the first five years of its operations, 1961-65, should be increased "by between 80 and 100 per cent above current levels."

Yudeiman's report, which has been submitted to the staff of the bank for "thorough review," seemed to confirm the belief of those who have long insisted that economic and social progress has to go hand in hand in Latin America, that socially desirable land distribution, for example, could have profoundly disturbing economic repercussions were it to adversely affect the output of food and fibre.

(Copyright News Service)

But, looking ahead to the year 2000, when population is expected to be an estimated 600,000,000 persons will be living in the region, he calls attention to the imperative need for sustained effort to encourage the development of agriculture in Latin America.

In the course of the 105-page document, Yudeiman stresses the importance of agriculture to the nations of the hemisphere. Nearly 90 million persons, 65 per cent of the population, work on farms. In 1965, gross agricultural output accounted for 330 billion of the total $100 billion worth of goods and services produced. The nearly $4 billion worth of agricultural products that Latin America exports

They dreamed in terms of making the land become the basis of the economic stability, the increasing welfare and the freedom and dignity "for the man who works it."

Obviously they were seeking to steal some of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's thunder. Castro then seemed to be winning the sympathies of the rural folk elsewhere in Latin America with his talk of agrarian reform.

Agribusiness reform, radical, conservative agrarian reform, has long been a rallying cry of the Communists and other anti-capitalist demagogues. And the danger implicit in U.S. exposure of vaguely defined agrarian reform was early recognized by critics of the Alliance, including such as Sen. John Sparkman. He warned that "largely as the result of events in Castro Cuba, the spectre of wide-scale and unbridled expropriation has unfortunately been read into the Alliance program and one of the conditions of U.S. aid," that is, agrarian reform.

At the behest of the Inter American Development Bank, which has made some $347.8 million in loans for Latin American agricultural development in the last five years, Yudeiman has spelled out what he and, presumably, also the bank feel is or should be the meaning of the purpose of land reform.

"To many," Yudeiman writes, "land reform is seen as a relatively easy means of correcting inequitable distribution of wealth and income so as to better the life of the landless, the cultivators and the small landholders."

"To others, land reform is seen primarily as a means of changing the economic, social and political structure in a country by reducing the political power, real or imagined, of a landed oligarchy..."

"To yet a third group, land reform is a force that influences productivity, output, income and income distribution."

According to Yudeiman, "the major 'agricultural' issue is fundamentally that of productivity at the farm level and the impact of land reform on productivity."

In other words, "it is preferable that programs of agrarian reform result in highly productive farms and some landless peasants rather than in no landless but very little marketable surplus from the land."

food and fibre production of Latin American farms is rising as the population increases "and that average real per capita consumption is not falling."

"There is, at this time, no 'Malthusian crisis' in Latin America," that is Latin agriculture still is capable of feeding and clothing the Latin American peoples.

THE significance of William Danderton's election as mayor of Toronto is that he represents the new breed of socialist who has come to terms with a capitalist society and agrees not to reform it but to run it. It is an approach that may lead the NDP to power some day, not to effect any radical revolution but to restore middle class morality.

The slogans — and they are generally meant — do not deal in existing abstracts; rather they deal in promises but vital and vote-getting capital issues such as the protection of property from taxes and expropriation. The North American working man has become a man of property, of wealth even, by the standards of the rest of the world, and his concern now is less for the attainment of equality than for the retention of what privileges he has. Even his union affairs are imbued by the spirit of business negotiations rather than class fervor.

The reasons for which the old Left in North America took this direction are many; one was the pressure from the ruling classes in the early years of the labor movement whose leaders found they could gain easier acceptance as a legitimate interest group if they accepted the ethos of the business society. This was one aspect of accepting that revolution or even radical redistribution of wealth were not necessary. Within these guidelines the working class was allowed to demand and acquire more and more. More by accident than by design of the capitalists, the working class of North America was co-opted into the ranks of capitalism.

For the reformers of the left wing in our society, this left only one outlet in politics: not to preach the transformation but the purification of the system. Like the chapel folk in Great Britain — to which British socialism owes a great deal spiritually — the reformers of our left wing made virtuousness their plank, even at the cost of other virtues such as gaiety which is very much a virtue in my book; too many reformers are oppressively solemn.

But when other parties are embroiled in scandals, when other parties also seem to

President Under Pressure

Expensive Shield

By RAYMOND HEARD from Washington

THE long and emotional debate over whether America needs a system of anti-missile missiles is reaching its climax. President Lyndon Johnson could announce a decision on the multi-billion dollar issue as early as in his State of the Union message in January.

The president's words will be studied closely by Washington's European and Asian allies, whose own nuclear defense positions may be vitally affected by his decision.

The question is whether the United States should continue her policy of relying almost exclusively on massive offensive power to deter potential enemies or spend millions of dollars on a defensive anti-missile "umbrella" to complement her strike potential — should America depend on the shield as well as on the sword?

The indications are that the president is finding it difficult to resist pressure for some sort of protection against attack by intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs), particularly the relatively unsophisticated type which the Communist Chinese might be able to launch within the next decade.

The pressure stems not only from China's progress in developing missiles, but also from the recent admission of the U.S. defense secretary, Robert McNamara, that Russia is building a defensive system around her key cities. If Russia can afford the luxury of an anti-missile shield, the argument runs, so can the U.S.

It is clear that some of the objections to the anti-missile system, Nike-X, have fallen away. Before the Chinese tested a nuclear missile, Mr. McNamara was able to point to the questionable "cost-effectiveness" of Nike-X. To protect big U.S. cities from a Russian attack, he claimed, would cost between $20,000 million and $40,000 million for short- and long-range anti-missile missiles, radar and public shelters. The defense secretary decided that this money would be better spent in escalating the balance of terror by developing offensive missiles.

The Pentagon now considers that a shield against a Chinese nuclear attack could be bought for as little as $5,000 million, and China, not Russia, is increasingly held to be the real enemy of the U.S. and its allies. The recent Red Guard excesses suggest to U.S. strategists that Peking may not be "rational" enough to refrain from an attack if the U.S. continues to depend only on its massive offensive capacity.

The experts here also argue that an anti-missile system, instead of stepping up the nuclear arms race, could well help to cool it down, if protection were made available to non-nuclear, neutral countries, such as India, as well as to America's allies. Washington has been consulting its NATO partners about the matter, and discussions have also been held with India. It seems, therefore, that the anti-missile missile could become an exportable commodity.

Controlling anti-missile hardware — a subject that would certainly interest the Russians, especially if West Germany were to be involved — would present problems. But the missiles could be classed as strictly "non-provocative," and be subject to international inspection. And they could be mounted on U.S. ships rather than inside Western Europe, Japan or India.

Moreover, it is quite possible that Mr. Johnson and Mr. McNamara will be forced to buy a limited Nike-X system for party political, rather than strategic or diplomatic, reasons.

There are already signs that the Republican Party, which has been reinvigorated by its gains in the mid-term elections in November, intends making Nike-X a major issue in the 1968 presidential campaign unless congressional demands for a system are met next year.

President Johnson knows only too well how powerful charges about nuclear "gaps" can affect a presidential contest. In 1960 he and the late President John Kennedy gained a lot of political ground out of the "missile gap" — an issue that was later shown to be rather specious.

The U.S. joint chiefs of staff have unanimously recommended an immediate go-ahead with Nike-X. Congress, which is always ready to appropriate funds for the military-industrial complex, voted more money for the development of the system this year than McNamara was prepared to spend. As a result of the November elections, the new Congress will be even more "hawkish," and Nike-X may be the price the president will pay for Republican co-operation in other fields.

If pressure is strong for, at the least, a shield against Chinese attack, the president has still to heed pressure against it.

The liberal bloc, which looks to Senators Robert Kennedy and Senator William Fulbright for leadership, is already after Mr. Johnson's blood

It's Up to de Gaulle

By PETER BUCKLEY

West Germany's new chancellor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger, has come out strongly in favor of patching up relations between Bonn and Paris.

It's far from certain, however, that his intentions will prove to be pure enough to suit President de Gaulle.

Willy Brandt, foreign minister in Kiesinger's new "grand coalition" of Socialists and Christian Democrats, gets a chance to test the wind today in a crucial meeting at the Elysee Palace in Paris with de Gaulle.

Brandt has gone to Paris determined to "put more vigor and muscle" into the 1963 Franco-German treaty. The alliance formed between de Gaulle and former chancellor Konrad Adenauer was all but killed by the antipathy between Paris and Bonn under the leadership of Ludwig Erhard and his foreign minister Gerhard Schröder.

Kiesinger's policy statement Tuesday to the Bundestag has been well received so far in Paris and Brandt should be an effective advocate for rekindling some of the old Franco-German warmth.

A telling point in his favor, in French eyes, must be that he made a special trip to Paris after the 1963 treaty was signed to assure de Gaulle of his support, speaking in his capacity as mayor of West Berlin and leader of the Socialist opposition.

But Brandt still is likely to find he has his work cut out.

In the three years of Erhard's chancellorship, two trends in French foreign policy became more firmly established—a detente with Russia and Eastern Europe and a rejection of American influence in Europe. Both represent hurdles which the new German leadership must somehow circumvent if it

Reunification Issue Played Down

German Policy Oriented To Please France, Russia

By CARL HARTMAN
From Bonn

Under Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger, the West German government can be expected to show a lot more interest in good relations with French President de Gaulle and the Soviet bloc and less in reunification with East Germany and Berlin.

This is the picture that emerges from Kiesinger's first statement to the Bundestag, traditionally a painstaking product of pulling and hauling within a new government.

This one was even harder to produce since Foreign Minister Willy Brandt and his Social Democrats were taking part for the first time with Kiesinger's Christian Democrats.

The changes from former chancellor Ludwig Erhard's statement of policy 13 months ago are marked.

Erhard limited himself to a brief and mild statement on France.

Kiesinger's message came out loud and clear.

"The decisive role for the future of Europe revolves on the development of German-French relations," he said. "Peace and order in Europe, hoped for by both East and West, is unthinkable without a close and confidential relationship between Germany and France."

Erhard set reunification as the main goal of his government's policy. He put the blame for failure to achieve wants the Franco-German treaty to be more than a dead letter.

The West German chancellor spoke Tuesday at length about the need for close cooperation with France and his government planned to work hard at improving relations with Paris.

On the question of Germany's relations with Eastern Europe, he edged away from the old hard line which forbade diplomatic ties with countries that recognize East Germany. But his verbal concessions to Czechoslovakia and Poland seemed to stop short of what those countries require to be reassured about Germany's aims.

And there was next to nothing in the speech to mollify Moscow, consistently fearful of a resurgent Germany.

It remains to be seen whether Kiesinger and Brandt will succeed in winning over de Gaulle without paying a price that would alienate either the German voters or the U.S. State Department.

CURRENT EVENTS

By M. D. LIPTON

"For the first time in the West German Federal Republic's history, right radicalism has become more than just a spectre. That was a conclusion drawn some months ago by Der Spiegel, a weekly West German news-magazine. Since then there has been more reason for concern.

Last Oct. 27, just one year after his coalition government's sweeping election victory, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's alliance disintegrated casting him into an uphill struggle for his political life. Less than two weeks later in the prosperous and stable state of Hesse, the National Democratic Party, a collection of right-wing radicals, made a startling show of strength at the polls and captured eight seats.

It marked the first time since the days of Hitler that ultra-nationalists gained representation in any major German parliament. Is history repeating itself in Europe?

Provided Stability

The republic's first two chancellors, Konrad Adenauer and Ludwig Erhard, together gave West Germany political stability and outstanding economic advance. The former proved to be a much-needed strongman, a unifying force among disparate interests. The latter, although an uncertain leader, was a major architect of German prosperity.

The leadership crisis blew up just at a time when the postwar boom was losing steam. What could complicate matters even more, would be a military vacuum, to accompany the economic and political void.

The North Atlantic Treaty

Organization, which modified the need of independent national armies in Europe, has been weakened by French President Charles de Gaulle's attack on the alliance's command structure.

If NATO grows much weaker, Germany would almost certainly be forced to follow a lone military policy. A new military machine in Bonn and the French insistence on integrated nationalism would probably lead to the old order of things wherein each European state maintained its own armed forces, independent foreign policy and distrust of its neighbors.

In the atomic age, such international anarchy presents a frightening picture.

Reactions Mixed

The resurgence of the far-right was received in Bonn with mixed reactions. Many pundits offered explanations. Some view it as a blessing, bringing what they consider a small band of insignificant misadventurers into the open.

Others drew parallels between Hitler's early supporters and those of the NPD.

Both movements attract disgruntled, middle-aged, middle-class people. In the late 1920's Hitler's electoral support was about the same as the NPD's today.

When crosswinds of change again appear to be blowing in Germany, what might be most needed is some basic political unity. A continuation of the personal bickering and pursuit of narrow party interests now marred the scene could precipitate the same tragic consequences of the past.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

● Minority governments, small third parties often hold the balance of power. How likely is the National Democratic Party to gain a position where it can wreak the kind of havoc from which it could most benefit?

● Are conditions in West Germany now as conducive to extremism as they were prior to World War II?

● The NPD has been said to have made political hay of German restitution payments to Israel, Britain and the United States. Should a nation or individual be allowed to demand such indemnities from another for atrocities committed by its forefathers?

Scissors Slice Climbing Water

By GEORGE GETZE
From Pasadena, Calif.

An astonishing kind of water that can climb uphill and over the edge of a glass pitcher, and whose flow can be stopped with a pair of scissors, has been discovered by a graduate student of California Institute of Technology.

The water is only 99.5 per cent pure water. The 5 per cent that makes the difference is polyethylene oxide, a powder that is used in paints, plastic, clothing and hair spray.

The gravity-defying properties of the elastic water are described by David James, a teaching assistant in mechanical engineering.

Experiments have shown before that very small amounts of certain polymers, that is, simple substances made of many, large identical molecules, give water an elastic, molasses-like quality. However, Caltech experts could not recall any liquid so elastic it would go on running out of a pitcher after the flow was begun and the pitcher set upright.

James discovered the effect accidentally. The 27-year-old student was pouring the solution from one beaker into another when he noticed it didn't stop running when he tilted the beaker back into a vertical position.

He also found that if a gallon beaker full of the water was placed 11 feet or more above an empty beaker it would continue running until the beaker was drained.

"The molecules of the polymer are especially long ones and probably are intertwined in the solution," James said.

"As a result, there is an elasticity that enables the liquid already spilled over the side to pull more of the liquid out after it. Too, the flow acts as its own siphon."

"It's really a tubeless siphon," he said. The flow of the elastic water up and out of the beaker or pitcher is roughly like throwing a heavy rope over the side of a ship and having the weight of the rope pull the rest of it overboard, according to James.

When the flow is slow enough, a pair of scissors can be used to cut the liquid an inch or two below the beaker's rim. The liquid above the cut snaps back into the container.

James said the elastic water works best when the concentration of the polymer is from 2 to 5 per cent of the solution. Sunlight or long exposure to air causes the polymer to disintegrate and the solution loses its ability to climb.

Buttle Complaint 'Unfair' to Mine

VANCOUVER (CP) — West-ern Mines was subjected to a virtual torrent of abuse during the last year because of its location within Strathcona Park, president Harold M. Wright said Wednesday in the company's annual report.

The base metal mine at the south end of Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park is now in the tune-up period leading to full production, he said.

'MAINLY UNFAIR'

"This opposition has been biased and emotional and mainly unfair to a new producer in the mining industry proceeding to production," said Mr. Wright.

"These factors had a serious effect on our personnel and delayed our progress to a considerable extent."

Later, referring to the B.C. Pollution Control Board's granting of permits for waste disposal for the mine and community, he said: "This action resulted in a virtual torrent of abuse by some citizens' groups and some news media."

LAKE SUPPLY

The Campbell River Water District, which draws its supplies from Buttle Lake, has led a campaign to prevent dumping of mine tailings into the lake.

The water district maintains that dumping of wastes could lead to a serious water pollution problem.

Conservationists opposed to the dumping maintain that government had no right to allow a private company to mine in a public park.

Labor Federation

Injunction Ban Urged on B.C.

The 126,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor asked Wednesday for legislation outlawing all injunctions in industrial disputes.

The request was made in a 11-page brief on injunctions presented to Attorney-General Bonner and Provincial Secretary Black at a 70-minute meeting with a delegation led by Federation president E. T. Staley of Victoria.

A month ago, the B.C. division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association mailed a six-page letter and statement to Premier Bennett urging retention of injunctions in industrial disputes.

Mr. Staley said the delegation was given an "attentive audience" and the cabinet ministers were interested in labor legislation in other countries, where injunctions are almost unknown.

"We are hopeful there will be serious attention by the government to these problems," he said.

"We would be extremely hopeful that after the last several years the government will see fit to have the standing committee on labor (of the legislature) act to hold hearings this session and it might be able to bring in recommendations."

This year, 14 union officials in B.C. have served jail terms for offences against injunctions. Federation Secretary Ray Haynes told reporters this always seems to have to happen before "people realize how serious the situation is."

Shouting Students Want College

Grant for Gallery

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria was included in grants awarded Wednesday by the Canada Council.

Its grant of $2,600 is to help pay the salary of assistant curator Will Hoare. He has been acting curator during the recent illness of director Colin Graham.

KELOWNA (CP) — About 200 shouting high school students Wednesday staged a brief demonstration in support of an Okanagan regional college. Financial support for such a college failed to get the 60-per-cent majority in a referendum Saturday among nine participating districts.

Chuck Jean, a Grade 12 student in Kelowna, said a noon rally Saturday is expected to draw from 2,000 to 4,000 students.

A large number expected at the college site near Kelowna to drive to Vernon and march around the city hall which is closed Saturdays. Eighty-five per cent of voters in Vernon turned down the college referendum while the majority in the eight other districts favored it. Jean said about two dozen students will show this morning.

Hanoi Was Ready

A woman's voice over a loudspeaker cried "United States planes over Hanoi!" and warned people to keep their heads low.

I saw a flight of F-105s swoop into the attack on the far side of the Red River and then scream upwards to peel away and fly off into the west where the bright sun blinded the anti-aircraft gunners.

Explosions rattled the shutters as the first bombs fell. From my window I followed the flight of the aircraft by watching the heads of the men with rifles as they looked skywards to take aim.

Twenty-five minutes after the start of the raid, a second wave of aircraft arrived with an ear-shattering sound of ripping silk. Every gun in the area fired and shutters rattled as machine-guns barked.

Suddenly a man leapt up, his hands in the air, shouting: "A hit, a hit." The aircraft disappeared from sight.

Looking from my window, I saw three or four silhouettes of aircraft racing for the shelter of a flock of small white clouds. Suddenly, a lone aircraft appeared over the city and all the frantic fire of the defence forces began to shoot at it. As the aircraft drew nearer I could see the cockpit with the pilot in it. Either a blast of the sun on its fuselage, or a tongue of flame, seemed to spurt from it and the Vietnamese shouted. Then the plane made off seawards.

Meanwhile, the voice on the loudspeaker kept calling calmly and tirelessly "Aircraft over Hanoi." For 15 minutes the voice on the loudspeaker alternated with the screaming of attacking aircraft and the roaring of anti-aircraft guns.

A lull set in after 45 minutes and people came out of shelters to stretch their legs.

Then the sound of aircraft started up again and once more the shutters were rattling. I gave up counting the waves of attacking aircraft.

One hour after the start of the raid two F-105s suddenly screamed over the rooftops. Then there was silence.

Two hours after the start of the raid, the all-clear call of the siren freed the people who had just undergone their longest ordeal.

Anniversary As Chief

Tories Unite in Amity To Honor Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—In a show of social amity, federal Conservative MPs and senators gave party leader John Diefenbaker a handsome desk and lamp Wednesday to mark his 10th anniversary as leader.

Both pro- and anti-Diefenbaker elements in the caucus contributed to the gifts.

There was no sign of the division that has placed more than 20 of the 96 MPs into the movement that produced a party call for a leadership convention by the end of next year.

They slipped drinks and chatted at the informal function.

Mr. Diefenbaker, alert and buoyant, reminisced about earlier political figures in a thank-you address.

He also told the 150 people present—wives also were there including Mr. Diefenbaker's wife, Olive—that he could have become a wealthy man by pursuing his career as a lawyer rather than entering politics. However, he would not change the course of his life if he had it to do over again.

Grits Stand Firm on Airport Strike

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker accused the Liberal government of trying to hold a shambles over the heads of the controllers while negotiations are going on. It was using "Parliament as a pawn to gain its own ends."

He and NDP Leader Douglas argued that the cabinet has no choice but to accept the wage recommendations set out by the Haileybury, Ont., judge in his government-appointed inquiry.

A strike would halt all commercial airline operations, domestic and foreign, in Canada. Only some private and charter aircraft using visual flight rules would be able to keep flying.

Mr. Benson and Mr. Pickers-gill told the Commons it was never intended that the judge would propose specific pay rates. His terms of reference referred only to a study of factors that might justify special pay rates.

It would upset the entire civil service salary schedule if the Robinson report was implemented.

MADE PUBLIC

The controllers now start at $4,800, the trainee stage, and can move up through various grades to a maximum of $9,538. Under the Robinson proposal the minimum would be $5,288 and the top-grade maximum $11,830.

Shortly after Speaker Lamoureaux agreed to the Conservative demand for the emergency debate—a move he rejected Tuesday—Mr. Pickersgill made the Robinson report public.

In the report, the judge referred to a conflict over whether his inquiry could properly deal with specific wage recommendations. A government representative argued that wages were excluded and union witnesses contended that wages had to be considered.

The terms of reference, written by the government, instructed the inquiry to study factors in working conditions that might justify special pay.

JUDGE SURPRISED

Judge Robinson said he was "more than surprised" when the government took the stand that specific wage rates could not be proposed. He said he studied the terms of reference carefully and decided the reverse.

Michael Starr (PC-Ontario), labor minister in the last Conservative government, drew a desk-thumping applause from opposition benches when he read part of Judge Robinson's report where the judge said he included rates of pay in his terms of reference.

Mr. Starr accused the government of hiding behind the hoax of "free collective bargaining" to justify staying out of labor negotiations.

Cost Factor May Kill Smog Study

PORT ALBERNI — "How can you put a price tag on the health of the people?" That was the shocked reaction of pollution fighter Colin Wilson to a suggestion that pollution research may be curtailed because of cost.

University of British Columbia reported on its study of respiratory cases in the Alberni Valley, saying the "result was inconclusive."

The head of the study, Dr. D.

Island Waters Recede

DUNCAN — The Cowichan and Koksilah rivers have gone down and no more families had to be evacuated. Tuesday the raging rivers spilling through private properties on the Cowichan Indian Reserve and across many roads in this district forced the evacuation of two Cowichan Indian families. They are now staying in the Duncan armories.

Other Indian families refused to leave their houses Tuesday night but trucks were ready all through the night in case of an emergency.

The evacuated families came from the Klen Klen Altz area of the Cowichan Indian reserve. Most roads, closed because of floods Tuesday, were passable during Wednesday.

Two pumps on Beverley Street in the southern portion of North Cowichan were working Wednesday night to draw flood waters from private residences.

Conditions are expected to keep improving while there is no more rain.

Sutton creek in the Lake Cowichan area started to overflow its banks.

About 18 inches of water covered parts of South Shore Road earlier this week.

The water has gone down and there is no immediate danger.

Peninsula

Police Could Double

The attorney-general's department proposes to establish a joint North Saanich-Sidney RCMP police department and more than double the existing number of men now policing the north end of Saanich Peninsula.

North Saanich Reeve J. B. Cumming said Wednesday the department has proposed a nine-man detachment with headquarters in Sidney.

The two municipalities are presently policed by a four-man detachment from Sidney.

NEW FACILITIES

Earlier this week Sidney village chairman A. W. Freeman told the village commission that the cost to construct an addition to existing police facilities to accommodate the new men would be $11,000.

He said he had yet to meet with the attorney-general's department to iron out rental costs.

PAY FOR FIVE

Reeve Cumming said North Saanich would be responsible for the salaries of five men and half the rental of the new headquarters.

Since, under the Municipal Act, policing of a town or village is under the jurisdiction of the attorney-general, cost of Sidney's police detachment of four men is paid by the government.

LONG SHIFTS

Reeve Cumming said busy holiday weekends, ferry tieups and busy horse racing days at Sandown track have often forced 14-hour shifts on police men in the two municipalities.

Canadians Shine In Ice Capades

By WILLIAM THOMAS

If anybody needs a pre-Christmas tonic he should try the Ice Capades at the Memorial Arena. It's excellence on the rocks.

The show opened Wednesday night to a near-full house that seemed to enjoy every minute of the extravaganza.

Easily the standouts in this edition were Guy Revell and his partner Gertrude Desjardins. These two Canadians excelled in their solos. Their dancing is elegant and their timing flawless.

EUROPEAN ACTS

Europe has made a significant contribution to the novelty numbers and the comedy.

The Three Toddlers from Germany have taken a successful balancing act developed in European circuses and put it on ice with great success. It's hard to believe that two members of this group are just 15 and 12.

Terry Head, an Englishman, has a comic routine that convulsed Wednesday's crowd. He has built it around a bumbling Bavarian who has trouble with his beer keg.

LOOKS DECEPTIVE

John LaBrecque is a former professional hockey player from Ontario who now manages to louse up Swan Lake in high style. His comedy is pure slapstick of the variety that looks deceptively easy.

The production numbers left many Ice Capade veteran viewers wondering what they will come up with next.

If anybody has a passion for statistics they will be delighted to learn one set of costumes uses almost 3,000,000 sequins.

Inquest Friday

An inquest into the death of shooting victim Kevin King, 9, of 1903 Maple in Sooke, will be held Friday, Coroner Edmund Jorje de St. Jorre announced Wednesday.

The inquest will be held at 7:30 p.m. in McCall Brothers' funeral home, he said.

Kevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert King, died Tuesday in St. Joseph's Hospital three days after being wounded in the head while he and his younger brother were firing a .22 calibre rifle.

Fund Aid Queried

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba development fund came under further questioning in the legislature Wednesday, sparked by a newspaper report that a $30,000,000 chemical plant being built by a U.S.-owned company in Brandon is being financed "almost completely" by Canadian taxpayers.

Opposition leader Gil Molgat asked Premier Roblin to confirm or deny a report in the Winnipeg Free Press which said:

● Simplot Chemical Company Ltd. of Boise, Idaho, received a $20,000,000 loan from the fund in 1965 toward construction of the Brandon plant, at 7 per cent interest.

● A further, supplemental trust indenture allowing interim financing at the same rate up to $3,500,000 was entered into early this month.

● It is "further understood that the Simplot plant has received, or is entitled to receive," $5,000,000 as an outright grant from the federal government for establishing a new industry in a "designated area."

● The Simplot loan "explains the need" for the action taken last spring in increasing the fund, originally $25,000,000, by another $50,000,000.

Mr. Roblin did not confirm or deny the report but said he hoped to make a statement today on the fund's dealings with Simplot.

Stanfield Opposes Investment Curbs

NEW YORK (CP) — Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia said Wednesday his province is increasingly dependent on foreign investment and he is opposed to investment curbs of any sort.

"Frankly, I think restrictions on outside investment are a luxury nobody can afford and certainly we in Nova Scotia, entering a new period of industrial expansion, can't afford them," he told a news and business gathering.

The seemingly diffident 52-year-old Nova Scotia premier spoke briefly at the gathering, but later faced a long and lively question period.

"We understand, sir, that you may soon be a candidate for prime minister of Canada and in that event, are the voters more likely to be interested in your economic outlook, or in your views on international affairs?" a New York reporter asked.

"As to your assumption, I must say that our Canadian newspapers, even our great newspapers, are sometimes wrong," Stanfield said, referring to speculation about the leadership of the Conservative party. "As to your question, it is the domestic issues, in Canada as in the United States, that ordinarily are of the most concern."

Ships Clearing All B.C. Ports

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shipping and National Harbours Board officials said Wednesday they are satisfied that efforts to clear up shipping in Vancouver harbor are going as well as can be expected.

Seventy-seven longshore gangs were working the Vancouver waterfront Wednesday. Maritime employers asked for 119 gangs but said a shortage of skilled winch operators and hatch tenders kept the gang total down.

"I expect quite a number of ships will be cleared out in the next few days," said Capt. B. D. L. Johnson, port manager.

Liquor Store Lights Just Off McKenzie

Should people seeking Saanich's first government liquor store look for a building that's a little more tipsy than most others?

"Once you come down McKenzie, you can't help but see the store," manager Douglas George said Wednesday. "It's all in the eye."

He was commenting on the fact that numerous customers have been unable to locate the new store. It's in the Lake Hill shopping district on Borden, a block-long street running south from McKenzie.

At Detention Home

Juveniles to Get Health Check

Juveniles admitted to the Greater Victoria Detention Home in future will be examined by a public health doctor within 24 hours of arrival, members of the metropolitan board of health decided Wednesday.

This practice has been followed in the case of adult prisoners who are examined for communicable diseases before their departure for Oakalla or Wilkeson Road Jail but not for young people.

STRICTER CODE

The directive was the result of a stricter code of regulations issued recently by the provincial government.

When a prisoner is found to be seriously ill, he is sent to hospital and a private physician instructed to take care of him.

"What brought this about?"

Have there been cases of communicable diseases?" asked Coun. Arthur Mebs, of Esquimalt.

FOLLOWING RULE

A member of the detention home committee which made the request to the board of health, Coun. Edith Gunning, of Saanich, said it was simply a matter of conforming to the provincial directive.

The board approved the appointment of Dr. Ruthie Dunn, a psychologist, to the mental health staff of the School Health Services.

British Plastic Ship Key Breakthrough

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters). — Britain claimed Wednesday a "technical breakthrough" in the construction of plastic ships which may revolutionize shipbuilding.

Builders of an experimental 60-ton plastic ship said the successful completion of the 160-foot ship is in sight.

Plastics have been used for building boats up to 80 feet. It has not been economically possible to build larger vessels because of the amount of stiffening needed for the skin of the hull.

"This barrier has now been broken and plastic ships up to a length of 200 feet are immediately practicable," a spokesman for the project said Wednesday.

The experimental vessel is being built by Aeroplastics, plastics and shipbuilders, backed by the British defence ministry.

Its construction follows research to determine whether glass-reinforced plastics could be used for ship construction on similar lines to aircraft construction.

SECTION SHOWN

A 34-foot test section of the vessel was shown to shipping and plastics experts Wednesday. It consisted of a hull made in one piece with prefabricated decks, bulkheads and superstructure consisting of only 34 parts. Not one screw, nail, bolt or other form of metal fastening was used.

The ship is to be launched Jan. 2—less than four months after construction began.

Bat Colony Given Notice

One of the city's finest bat colonies is looking for a new home.

The bats are homeless because the Dominion Theatre on Yates is being torn down to make way for a parking lot.

By the end of January the building, which has stood in the 800 block Yates since 1913, will be gone.

The old cinema showed the great classics of the silent movie era. In the 20s and 30s, the great days of big bands, most of the name groups played on its stage.

Competition from TV forced closure in 1961 and the bats have been in residence since then.

The seats, lights and cinema finery are up for sale. The bats are also available.

Bad Cheques Abound

Christmas Season Time to Be Chary

Christmas can be more cheery for Victoria merchants if they make sure that cheques are good before they cash them, city police officials said Wednesday.

"A cheque is only as good as your ability to find the person who made it," Police Chief J. F. Gregory said.

He estimates Victoria merchants lose about $150,000 a year on bad cheques.

Detective Inspector William Andrews, whose department processes the "paper" as bad cheques are called, said he is worried by their increasing incidence.

FEW REPORT

The police estimate of the amount lost is only approximate, because only about 10 per cent of the victims are believed to report their losses.

Last year, city police investigated 132 cases totalling $15,316.73. There were 46 men, seven women and one young girl involved in bad cheque prosecutions.

"Our total this year is going to be much greater," Insp. Andrews said. "We are already well over last year's total."

Police said the Christmas season, with its hectic shopping and bustle, is an ideal time to pass bad cheques.

The inspector suggested merchants alert their staffs to these points to remember before accepting cheques:

- Beware of clients who are indignant at requests for adequate identification.
- Avoid cashing cheques made out for more than the amount of the bill.
- Be deliberate in perusing identification, listing numbers, names and addresses.

New Number On Bad Bill

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police say the latest of 22 near-perfect counterfeit Canadian $10 bills recovered in Vancouver has a new wrinkle. The usual O-T 17879 serial number has been changed to P-T 6903837.

Buttle Decision 'Rushed'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The disposal of Buttle Lake reopened a part of the Campbell River Water Board's decision.

Appeals.

Lawyer Tom Berger, counsel for the Campbell River Water Board, told the court the B.C. Water Pollution Board "rushed" to give Western Mines a permit Sept. 15 to dump waste and sewage into the lake because the mining company wanted to go into production.

He said Campbell River Water Board's request for a hearing on the proposed waste disposal was ignored. The lake is part of the Campbell River watershed.

The water board is appealing a ruling by Mr. Justice Victor Dryer in B.C. Supreme Court Oct. 17 that the pollution board had the legal right to permit the dumping, and that the court had no jurisdiction to quash the decision.

Mr. Berger contended the pollution board contravened its own enabling act when it arbitrarily granted the permits to Western Mines without an opportunity for objectors to state their case at a hearing.

He contended that the courts had the right to quash decisions of the pollution board, and that therefore Mr. Justice Dryer was "absolutely wrong" in his ruling.

Cut Trees?

Oak Bay Roars Protest

By BOB FETHICK

In Oak Bay, where progress is a quiet thing and all is love-thy-neighbor, one word can throw the whole system into a cocked hat — the word is "tree."

Mention the word in connection with removal and roars of protest go up.

Last month, Oak Bay parks committee received a request from a Victoria Avenue resident asking that two trees be removed from the boulevard between Windsor and Granite, and up near the balloon.

Council granted permission for the trees to be removed by the residents, and decided to send out a circular letter asking if residents wanted a flowering tree replanting program.

One complaint about present willow trees on the street was that at certain times of the year they give off a gummy substance.

Irate residents Tuesday night replied with solutions ranging from, "If we cannot cope with such a trivial difficulty we should retire to the Sahara," to "Future requests for such outrageous action should be met with the suggestion that they should move to Saanich, which is full of treeless subdivisions."

But not everyone writing in was against replanting. One resident felt the boulevard trees had never been very satisfactory. Another was in favor of removal of the birch trees and replanting.

Of 11 answers received eight were against removal and replanting, two were in favor and one neutral.

"I guess we can forget it," said parks committee chairman Coun. Frances Elford.

Another victory for Joyce Kilmer.

Letter Kept Secret?

Education Minister Charges Politics

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Education Minister Peterson wonders if politics is causing a breakdown in communication between his department and the residents of Sooke school district.

He said Wednesday Sooke school board was advised some time ago that its $2,165,200 referendum approved last Saturday might not be carried out until there is an improvement in the international money situation.

But this form letter, sent to the boards of all districts in B.C. where school referendums were to be held, apparently was not passed on to the voters of Sooke school district until the referendum received an overwhelming approval at the polls.

Sooke school board chairman John Bartanus, the unsuccessful New Democratic Party candidate for Esquimalt in the Sept. 12 provincial election, unleashed a tirade against the government during Tuesday night's school board meeting.

"If they can find money for blacktop there must be a place somewhere in their budget for education," he was quoted as saying.

Mr. Peterson said Wednesday it appeared "from the impression conveyed in the press" that the Sooke school problem has been turned into a political football.

He said he wondered why the Sooke school board waited until after the people had voted before releasing the contents of his form letter to the public.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged that unless B.C.'s school districts are provided with the buildings they need "chaos will develop throughout the province."

"We need the schools desperately. We need them a damn sight more than we need some of the pulp mills which are being built," the NDP leader said.

Mr. Strachan said a delay in the school building program would cause overcrowding and a lack of programming, and would prevent pupils from getting the basic education they need to allow them to go on to higher education.

The education minister, however, argued that his department has already approved some $50,000,000 worth of school construction this year, which is $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 more than was approved in 1965.

He said $43,349,154 in school referendums were approved by the electorate in this month's civic elections and that "my department is reviewing all the requests being made by the boards, trying to place them on a priority basis — in an endeavor to insure that necessary classroom facilities are provided."

The $2,165,200 Sooke referendum will be considered along with the other districts, he added.

The priority system for school building in B.C. was announced by Mr. Peterson at the B.C. School Trustees' convention in Penticton last October.

Every school district which held a referendum this month was advised accordingly about the "very uncertain outlook which now hangs over the capital market."

Each board was told in the form letter that even if its referendum were approved by the voters "the board must be aware that the implementation may not be feasible until a vastly improved situation develops in the capital money market."

Mr. Peterson said this means a cutback, but not necessarily a complete cut-off. In school construction until the bond market improves.

He said the government has authorized about $5,000,000 worth of school construction since his policy statement in October.

The $43,349,154 in referendum approvals are for projects which will meet B.C.'s elementary and secondary school needs for the next three-year period, not just next year, Mr. Peterson said.

Bartanus

First Time Last Night

Sooke School Board chairman John Bartanus denied Education Minister Peterson's "political football" charge Wednesday.

"The first time I saw that letter — or even heard anything about it — was last night (Tuesday)," said Mr. Bartanus.

"He's scraping the bottom of the barrel when he uses that excuse for curtailing school construction in this district or any other."

Mr. Bartanus said the board had warnings earlier that non-essential building such as gymnasiums and activity rooms would be deferred. Now the building ban has apparently been extended, he observed.

"What are we going to do with the 450 extra pupils we expect next September: hang them on nails?" asked Mr. Bartanus.

He said that cutting back on education spending will only perpetuate B.C.'s economic problems.

Students Face School by Shift In Eight Areas

By BILL STAVDAL

Greater Victoria faces swing shifts in eight elementary schools next September if the planned Christie Point and Newton elementary schools aren't ready by then, school board officials warned on Wednesday.

Saanich School District is relatively well off but the Sooke system also faces critical crowding, according to a survey by the Colonist.

In Victoria, trustee Peter Bunn issued the warning after consultation with district superintendent Joseph Chell.

He spoke after education department heads confirmed Wednesday that only the most essential school projects are being approved because of a shortage of money.

Most urgent projects in Greater Victoria are the planned $1,000,000 elementary-junior secondary school at Christie Point in View Royal, and the $600,000 Newton Elementary School at Newton and Richmond in the Saanich peninsula.

The department has been withholding permission to go ahead with Newton school; plans for Christie Point school will go to the department later this month.

Temporary

Fairey Plant Closing

By BOB PETHICK

Fairey of Canada Ltd. plant at Patricia Bay Airport is going out of business — at least temporarily.

Plant manager G. A. Marr indicated Wednesday that the plant would close down and not reopen until business in the aviation field picked up.

"Fairey of Canada Ltd., western division, with facilities at Victoria International Airport, is suspending operations until business activities on the West Coast in their particular field will warrant reactivation of the facility," said Mr. Marr in a prepared statement.

SOME RETAINED
"Certain personnel will be retained to fulfill continuing military commitments," he added.

The plant employs about 25 men. In its heyday, 300 men were employed. The shutdown will take place at the end of January.

Fairey here was best known for converting standard aircraft for conversion jobs was a contract to convert three huge Martin Mars flying boats.

More Ships Coming

Destroyer-Escorts to Head West

Two more destroyer-escorts will be added to the Pacific Maritime Command this spring. The ships will be transferred from Halifax to the west coast, arriving sometime in March.

Personnel to man the ships is already being mustered here. A third destroyer-escort will also arrive in Esquimalt from Halifax in the spring but this will be for refitting at HMC Dockyard.

THIRD STAYING?
It was not known whether the third ship will remain with the Pacific Maritime Command after refit. Armed Forces information officer Lt.-Cmdr.

Ray Wormald confirmed word that the three ships would be coming to the west coast but added he could not confirm that they would be.

It is believed the two ships that will be joining the fleet are the HMCS Algonquin and Crescent. The ship coming in for refit is believed to be HMCS Columbia.

DOING OWN WORK
Transfer of the ships and the refit at HMC Dockyard are in keeping with statements made by Maritime Commander Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien during a visit here in September.

Admiral O'Brien said in future the navy would do its own refitting and repair work.

He was answering a question on whether there would be layoffs in the dockyard following retirement of all but one of the Pacific Command's 22-year-old ocean escort fleet.

BOLSTER COMMAND
Pacific Maritime Commander Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles said during the press conference that previously there had not been enough personnel in HMC Dockyard to carry out major repair work.

Admiral O'Brien said ships from the east coast would be transferred to the West Coast to bolster Pacific Command and that eventually both commands would share the helicopter destroyers now limited to the east coast.

Arrival of the two ships will boost the west coast's destroyer-escort force to seven ships.

Street Blast Sounds Alarm

A loud "explosion" in the 700-block View Street startled some nearby residents late Wednesday, and the fire department was summoned.

Hydro officials said an underground cable had failed to hold in a test, and a transformer blew.

William Richardson of 205 Maddock reported to Victoria police Tuesday his home was entered and a $20 bill stolen. The thief apparently used a garbage can to climb to the sun-deck. Drawers were ransacked but nothing else was reported stolen.

Half Goal Awarded Teachers

Greater Victoria School District settled two 1967 pay contracts Wednesday, one by arbitration and one by negotiation.

An arbitration board gave the district's 1,093 teachers a salary increase averaging 8 per cent. Last Wednesday the school board ratified an agreement giving 255 maintenance workers a 9-per-cent increase spread over two years.

BETTER THAN HALF

The 8-per-cent increase is a little better than half the 15 per cent originally asked by the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association. The board first offered 5.34 per cent.

Before the matter went to arbitration the board offered six per cent and the teachers came down to 11 per cent.

The three-man arbitration board was headed by Victoria lawyer Gerald Sullivan. School board spokesman Kenneth Murphy said on one provision of the award, a bonus of $200 annually to teachers holding a master's degree.

The teachers had asked for creation of a new, higher-paid category for teachers with the degree. The board refused the request but granted the bonus.

SIX-STEP SCALE

A teacher is paid according to a scale which has six categories based on educational qualifications. In addition, pay rises annually for up to 14 years.

Most of the 1967 pay increase will go to teachers at the bottom of the scale. Some will get raises of 10 per cent.

For teachers at the top of the ladder, immediate 1967 raises will average about 7 per cent.

PROPOSAL LOST

Increments were increased slightly, but the arbitration board rejected the teachers' proposal for reducing the number of years before maximum salary is reached.

The other agreement is with the Greater Victoria School Board Employees' Association. It gives wage increases averaging .5 per cent in 1967 and 4.9 per cent in 1968 to the school district's janitors, custodians and tradesmen.

Noisy New Machinery Keeps Neighbors Awake

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

Victoria Plywood Ltd. is making an effort to control fly ash and dust but residents in the View Royal area are far from content. They are being kept awake at night by the racket of new machinery installed in the plant, they complain.

Members of the Greater Victoria Board of Health were told Wednesday, in a letter from W. G. Holms and signed by 29 residents, that the noise of new machinery recently installed in the plant murdered sleep.

People whose bedroom windows faced on the mill side were not able to sleep at all and people whose bedrooms faced away from the mill got little rest.

DECIBEL READING

Mr. Holms, who lives on View Royal Avenue, suggested that perhaps the B.C. Research Council should be approached to take decibel level readings in the area.

"There is nothing in the health act regarding the prevention of noise. Perhaps the situation should be handled by means of a local bylaw," the senior medical officer of health, Dr. J. L. M. Whitehead, suggested.

Coun. Arthur Mebs of Esquimalt wondered if the complaint was justified. There had been no word from adjacent motels on the subject over the years, he pointed out.

'JOIN ESQUIMALT'
"What View Royal should have done was come in with Esquimalt where it would have had the benefit of an anti-noise bylaw."

The board will write the plywood firm asking if anything can be done to cut down the noise.

Health Cost Plan Forthcoming Soon

A fair cost-sharing formula which will be the basis of a regional district board take-over from the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health will probably be forthcoming soon, board members were told Wednesday.

Board chairman Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich said he attended a meeting of the Greater Victoria Inter-municipal Committee the day before, at which it was determined to press for action on the matter.

Earlier, the regional board discussed the possible take-over and decided it wanted no part of it until some sort of an equitable cost-sharing formula was worked out by the provincial government.

With the formal withdrawal of Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt from the health district on Dec. 13, the board as such will cease to exist.

The break-up was brought about by the fact that the three urban communities which are withdrawing pay for health costs on a $2-per-capita basis while the other seven rural members of the board pay between 30 and 40 cents a head of population.

B.C.'s new health minister, Wesley Black, said Wednesday that he will get around to the metro master "as soon as I possibly can."

Golf Sales Blossoming

Santa Claus, without a beard, is circulating in Victoria these days. He's doing it on behalf of the Centennial Golf Committee.

The committee is travelling around town offering $10 tickets to the Commonwealth and Canadian Amateur Golf tournaments. In between is the Willingdon Cup inter-provincial competition.

For $10 golf fans and interested persons will be getting $39.50 worth of golf—spread over 11 days.

OFFER ENDS SOON
The offer ends Jan. 1. Bill McColl, chairman of the ticket sales committee has banked more than $3,000 in pre-sales.

"We hope to sell a lot more before Christmas," he said. The committee has 41 sales outlets on the island, with tickets spread among golf clubs and stores.

A suggestion that has blossomed among business firms is buying tickets in bulk and giving them to employees or customers.

Wild Crowd At Liverpool

LIVERPOOL (AP) — Alex of Amsterdam drew 2-2 with Liverpool amid wild crowd scenes Wednesday night to move into the quarter finals of the European Cup of Champions soccer competition on a 7-3 aggregate.

At least 19 fans were taken to hospital with shock after a crush on the Spion Kop—the vast terracing that rises up behind one goal at Liverpool's Anfield Road Stadium.

What Colwood members have for many years thought was the worst green on their course is disappearing.

The second hole is to have a new green behind the present one and the club's new superintendent Sam Mackness has promised the club he will have the change completed and ready for play by next June.

This means it will be in play for the Willingdon Cup matches and the Canadian Amateur Championship next August.

The old green was unpopular with some members because its surface could not be seen for the second shot; it sloped away towards the back, and it was so undulating that it was difficult to find a reasonably fair place on which to cut the hole.

The new green will add about 30 yards to the hole making it about 400 yards long. The present length is 376 yards.

Club captain Derek Rhys-Jones says it will be a two level green not unlike the one at the third hole at Oak Bay. It will have a narrow entrance and it will be visible for the shot to the green.

It will also make the first three holes at Colwood all of about the same length.

There's one thing about winter golf in Victoria: It provides plenty of variety.

On Saturday afternoon at the Victoria Club I saw Oliver Anderson of the Shaughnessy club playing against Bill McColl in a short-sleeved scarf shirt.

Anderson, who was chairman of ticket sales for the Canadian Open at the Shaughnessy Club was over here with other mainland golf officials to discuss next year's ROGA events in Victoria.

The visitors all expressed themselves as pleased with the alterations which the Victoria club has made to its course for the Commonwealth matches, and they were looking forward to playing at Colwood on the Sunday.

However, overnight the glorious warm weather of Saturday was replaced by torrential rainfall, and on Sunday the Vancouver men had to be content with a "look at" the course from the clubhouse windows.

Indeed, the Sunday rain was so heavy that most of the clubs went on to temporary greens for the hardy few who braved the storm, and among the weather casualties were the district buttons matches due to have been played at Gorge Vale.

In the open buttons, Bill Wakeham and Noel Pomfrey of the host club were the challengers against Victoria's George Bigelow and Vaughan Trapp. The match will now be postponed until after the New Year.

This week's big event is the final round of the first District Medal.

It is to be at Uplands Sunday and Bill Wakeham has such a tall lead that the Gorge Vale man can more or less play a "weekenders round" and be sure of the major prize.

Bill's two round total is 129 which puts him 11 strokes ahead of clubmate Gordon Jones and 12 ahead of Vaughan Trapp of Victoria.

Bill McColl, chairman of ticket sales for the Commonwealth matches and the Canadian Amateur and Willingdon Cup matches in Victoria next August, asks me to remind all golfers that the special low admission charge of $10 for the two weeks season ticket will be raised to the normal $12.50 at the end of the year.

The tickets are an admirable Christmas gift for anyone who is either a golfer or who wants to be part of the greatest golfing show Victoria has ever staged.

You can buy these tickets at the Store No. 14 in Centennial Square, at any local golf club or for assured Christmas delivery phone Bill McColl, EV 5-3471.

Ten dollars is the cost for 11 days of competitive play plus another four days of practice. It is a bargain and a gift that any golfer will cherish.

Larry McCooly and Ray Johnson of Colwood are still senior buttons holders in the Victoria district. They beat Gorge Vale challengers John Carlow and Stu Mitchell at the 17th at Colwood and they now face Eardley Wright and Bill Sanford of Victoria club at Gorge Vale.

'We're Number 1' Chant Sends Rangers to Win

MONTREAL 1, CHICAGO 2
BOSTON 1, TORONTO 3
DETROIT 1, NEW YORK 4

The amazing New York Rangers, spurred on by a noisy crowd chanting "We're No. 1," maintained sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League Wednesday night by clobbering the Detroit Red Wings, 4-1, as Rod Gilbert scored two goals.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Rangers, who continued their finest start in over two decades as Don

Marshall and Phil Goyette also scored. The crowd saw the Wings, held to a third period goal by Alex Delvecchio, suffer their 13th road loss in a row.

Gilbert now has scored seven goals in his last four games and his total of 15 for the season is the best mark in the league even though he is playing on an ailing ankle.

Marshall's goal was his 14th of the season.

DOMINATED

The Rangers completely dominated the first two periods and only superb goal-tending by Detroit goalie Roger Crozier, who had been benched in two of the last five games for erratic performances, prevented the score from being higher.

All four Ranger goals came on point-blank shots that Crozier never had a chance at, and he made numerous spectacular saves.

Ed Giacomin had an easy time in the Ranger nets the first two periods when the Red Wings made a total of 14 shots. He was pressed a bit in the third period when Detroit made 14 more, but he stopped them all, except for the lone Detroit goal at 2:32.

The Loveliest Gifts are TIE-TIE wrapped

START WITH A PROPERLY WRAPPED AND TIED PACKAGE

RECTANGULAR BOX
Cut paper to fit around box with 2-inch overlap. Cut ends 1 inch longer than half the depth of box. Fold paper snugly around package, tuck ends and seal with rubber cement. Fold at ends, snip.

ROUND BOX
Roll one full turn on paper, cut to allow 2-inch overlap. At ends, cut so paper folds just to center. Fasten paper tight around box, then plant at ends as shown. Cover center with seal, or else cut from same paper.

CROSS CORNER WR
Start at upper left corner, draw tie diagonally to top of box, under upper right corner, up and over lower right, under lower left and back to starting point. Tie Square knot.

DIAGONAL WR
Wind tie in parallel hand around end, leaving long end. Cross this end over, then make bands on face of box and draw bands together. Tie Square knot.

NO-KNOT WR
Wonderful stick-to-itself when moistened. Satintone makes box hard without tying. Put band around box, cut for 2-inch overlap, moisten and press.

SAFETY KNOTS
Square knots and Satintone's knots are most dependable as safeguards against slipping. In Square knot, put end A over end B and tighten, then again put A over B and tighten. In Satintone's knot, put end A under end B and tighten, then again put A under B and tighten.

The things you can do with Satintone® and Ribbonette® are limited only by your imagination.

They curl
Divide to desired widths
They're the same on both sides
Strong
Satintone sticks to itself when moistened

Youth Unit Sought

Formation of a Victoria Youth Council is the hope of a group of young adults working out of the Social Education Centre at 1054 McGregor Street.

The planned council would draw together all clubs and organizations having anything to do with young people, said spokesman Robert Arnold, 1239 Esplanade.

ASPIRING WRITER

"It would be a clearing house for ideas, and provide a workshop and lobby in the community for ideas from youth groups," said Mr. Arnold, 23, an aspiring writer.

Besides Mr. Arnold, organizers are Jackie Doherty and Charles Barber, students at the University of Victoria; Frank Cox, a student at the Institute of Adult Studies; and Ted Whitaker, an instructor at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads.

Mrs. Kennedy

Story in Court

Anger Replaces Jacquie's Trust

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy will go to court by the end of the week to block publication — perhaps forever — of her hand-picked historian's "official" book about President Kennedy's assassination, charging breach of faith and contract and invasion of privacy.

The former First Lady's relationship with author William Manchester, which began in trust and the blessing of the entire Kennedy family ended Wednesday in anger and disillusion.

RARE STATEMENT

Mrs. Kennedy issued a rare statement voicing her feelings and the three unnamed spokesmen for the family — two of whom had read the manuscript — held a press conference to detail her complaints.

By moving swiftly to obtain a temporary injunction against Manchester and his publishers in state supreme court, Mrs. Kennedy hopes to keep the first installment of a Look magazine version of "The Death of The President" off the newsstands Jan. 10 and prevent publication of the book by Harer and Row next April.

'UNFAIR REFERENCES'

In her statement, Mrs. Kennedy said she also objected to "inaccurate and unfair references to other individuals" in contrast to a "generous" picture of the Kennedy family. Informed sources said she was sensitive about the way Manchester handled the Kennedy's attitude toward President Johnson, which she fears may affect Sen. Robert Kennedy's political future.

Both Mrs. Kennedy and the senator spoke to Manchester last summer and asked if he intended to live up to his obligation and "sometimes he said he would," the spokesman said.

HE REFUSED

They asked for the manuscript last fall and "he refused to make it available." The four family representatives saw one version of the manuscript but

Toy Walkie-Talkies Can Be Costly

OTTAWA (CP) — That low-powered walkie-talkie set you bought your kids for Christmas could turn out to be mighty expensive if they misuse it, the federal transport department warned Wednesday.

A department official said in an interview children have used the sets to misdirect taxis and upset construction work on big projects where walkie-talkies are in common use.

HAD APPROVAL

Reached at his home in Middletown, Conn., Manchester said he did not think Mrs. Kennedy had read the book. He noted that "without the approval of Robert Kennedy, speaking as a member of the family" it would not have been possible for him to have written the book.

"I have confidence in the book," he said. "I think it will stand on its own. I ask only that people give it a chance."

However, no licence is needed to use the walkie-talkies and they can be legally sold as long as their power is less than one-tenth of one watt.

The toy walkie-talkies operate in the same frequencies of a wave band that includes everything from taxis to fishing boats.

Mental Hospital

Bids for Foundation About as Expected

Tenders for construction of a foundation for the $6,000,000 provincial mental hospital for Victoria were opened Wednesday by Public Works Minister Chant.

Pacific Pile Driving Co. Ltd. of Victoria submitted the lowest of seven bids, with a tender of $157,170.

BID CHECKED

Other bidders were Farmer Construction Ltd., $158,157; G. H. Wheaton Ltd., $161,817; Burns and Dutton Construction, $178,000; R. A. Hall Ltd., $188,564; C. J. Oliver, $206,900; and H. B. Contracting Ltd., $223,465.

Mr. Chant said the contract would probably be awarded to the lowest bidder, subject to the bid being checked by his department and approval being given by the treasury board.

"I expect this go-ahead right away because the green light has been given to this type of project," he said.

IN KEEPING

"The bid was in keeping with our own estimates."

The minister noted, however, that "some of the bids went quite high" and that contractors' estimates for materials were "much more consistent" than their estimated labor costs.

Nurses Sing Carols At Festive Dinner

Decorated by the Ladies' Auxiliary, the auditorium at St. Joseph's Hospital took on a festive air for the annual Christmas dinner of the Canadian Diabetic Association.

Following the dinner, the nurses' choir, under the direction of Mr. E. A. A. Boulden, entertained with a varied program of Christmas Carols from old time favorites to modern ones.

Special feature for the younger members was the visit of Santa which was followed by a colorful display of folk dances by the Norway Dancers.

Several instrumental numbers and Norwegian songs were also enjoyed by all the guests. In charge of this group was Mr. A. Gillestein.

A lighted Christmas tree shone over a festive scene in the Empress Hotel ballroom yesterday afternoon for the annual Victoria Women's Canadian Club Christmas tea.

Duncan Wedding

Duncan United Church was the setting for the recent marriage of Virginia Ruth Lefever and Mr. Roger Patrick Foley. Rev. R. R. Knipe officiated at the evening ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Lefever, Maple Bay Road, Duncan, and the son of Mrs. K. Foley, Hythe, Kent, England, and the late Mr. R. Foley.

Mr. Bill Howie sang Wedding Prayer during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a traditional white floor-length gown in A-line style with empire waist. Guipure lace bordered the full train and hemline of the gown. Her net veil was floor-length and she carried a fan-shaped bouquet of white gardenias.

Miss Hope Conway was bridesmaid and Miss Muffy McLay flower girl. They wore matching deep orange velvet floor-length gowns and head-dresses in tone. Pale orange colored roses were in their bouquets.

Mr. Donald Lefever, bride's brother, was best man. Mr. P. Williams and Mr. G. Schmidt were ushers.

A reception followed at the Cowichan Golf and Country Club.

For travelling on honeymoon up-island the new Mrs. Foley wore a Donegal tweed suit in orange tones and beige accessories.

The newlyweds will make their home at Gold River, B.C.

Model Sonja Pugin wears a red wool nightshirt with traditional matching nightcap, designed for cold winter nights. The outfit comes from Lilly-white of London. —(CP Photo)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about the woman who has asthma and hives and wondered what the doctor meant when he said she got them from her husband. She was reluctant to accept the doctor's diagnosis because she couldn't believe asthma and hives were "contagious."

Her letter was way out but your answer was perfect. I loved what you said about ulcers. And you were so right.

Ulcers are a sign of interpersonal problems but it isn't always the husband or the wife. Ann, it can be somebody else who lives under the roof.

Many married couples have a mother or a mother-in-law or a stepbrother or a great-aunt living with them.

These additions can be real trouble and often there is no way to get rid of them short of a family rupture. You have done a lot of good by declaring that a husband and wife owe their first allegiance to one another, and a third party who makes trouble between them should not be tolerated. I know about these things because I have both ulcers and hives — and a relative living with us.

X. PERIENCED

Dear X: Thanks for your letter, and now that you know the score, don't just sit there and do something.

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever we are invited to a small dinner party I bake pastry or an elegant dessert. Invariably the hostess says thank you (in haste), and puts my treat out of sight.

When I entertain and someone

Gifts were presented in a decorated pink and white basket and streamers to her chair hung from a cluster of wedding bells.

Guests included Mrs. P. Charleston, Mrs. Harry Cameron, Mrs. Roy Mathias, Mrs. Robert Brazier, Mrs. Mervin Abrahamson, Mrs. Bishan Judge, Mrs. Grant Barker, Mrs. F. Wulway, Mrs. J. Creneh, Miss Linda Cameron and Miss Mollie Woolcott.

bringing anything might feel uncomfortable. Please set me straight. — EUROPEAN

Dear European: It is not essential to bring a home-made goodie when you come to a dinner party. Apparently you enjoy doing so, and I would not deny you the pleasure by suggesting that you stop. But to expect the hostess to serve your dessert is asking too much. Most people don't need ONE dessert, much less two.

It occurred to me that perhaps I am being tactless since the guests who did not bring a treat I always serve it along with my own dessert and I thank the person in the presence of the others.

Gay Festive Mood At Christmas Tea

Hollywood House was decorated in a gay festive theme for the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society Christmas tea which realized the sum of $400.

Mrs. D. R. Coell, wife of the commanding officers of Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) officially opened the affair. She was introduced by Mrs. Harry Burton, general convener, and little Miss Fiona Robertson presented a bouquet to Mrs. Coell.

Dressed in green outfits the Misses Debbie White and Julie Straith from the Adeline Duncan School of Highland Dancing performed a lively little jig and added a "touch of the Irish" to the afternoon's entertainment.

Also on the program were the Misses Penny White and Cheryl Straith who performed individual Highland dances to the tune of bagpipes played by Harold Senyk.

Mr. Robert Acreman entertained the guests with several piano selections including Scottish airs and Christmas Carols.

Mrs. Gerry Inglis and Mrs. James McAulay were in charge of decorations. Mrs. Jeanie Wilson looked after the guests' tables, and hostesses for the tea were Mrs. Archie Sinclair, Mrs. Inglis and Miss Margaret Smith.

Pourers were Mrs. Robert Baird, Mrs. James Marrs, Miss Georgina MacKay and Mrs. Smith.

Gifts were presented in a decorated pink and white basket and streamers to her chair hung from a cluster of wedding bells.

Candlelight Gleams on Castle Mantels

For the first time in nearly 60 years, the massive mantels at Cragside Castle gleamed in candlelight shimmering on the antique bric-a-brac, for the annual meeting of The Castle Preservation Society.

The intricately carved mahogany "Reading Maketh a Full Man" (Francis Bacon) mantel in the library was centred by a large Chinese blue and white jar.

containing white chrysanthemums, flanked by brass candlesticks with gold tapers.

The sandstone mantel in the baronial hall with its inscription "Welcome ever Smiles and Farewell goes out sighing," from Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida, was ornamented by a copper bowl of jasmine and white and gold candles in brass and Bristol blue glass.

Tintype pictures, pewter

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. A. Douglas Turnbull, Mrs. W. Lloyd Morgan, Mrs. Naomi Woodburn, Mrs. J. Dimery Johnson.

Strippers In London Unzipped Officially

LONDON (Reuters) — London's strippers Wednesday stepped out of their clothes with official blessing from the city fathers after 14 years of private peeing.

The Great London council voted to legalize "the spectator sport of sex" which since 1952 has been confined to 17 striptease clubs in Soho.

All 72,000 Watts

Lights Important In Ice Capades

By WAYNE THOMAS

"Odd lights take the boys, even the girls... stand by... hit it!" and the 180-by-60-foot Memorial Arena bursts into a mass of blue, pink and white light.

The 10 spotlight operators, who are all electricians and projectionists, carry out Ice Capades lighting director Bill Rudolph's commands with split-second accuracy.

In addition to the 10 spotlights, there are 36 blue and 36 pink overhead lights, each 1,000 watts, and 24 powerful white lights above them.

"There's 72,000 watts on the

Ready in Six Hours

Before Wednesday night's performance, Bill explained he had started setting up the lighting for the show soon after 9 a.m. and was finished at 1 p.m.

"The whole show can be ready in six hours from scratch," he said.

"This is due mainly to the experience of the technicians and the competent local staff we engage. But the mobility of the show helps a lot, too," he said.

"The production air freight all its equipment when it cannot use its own private train.

"The cost is staggering, especially for the two trips to Australia," he said.

When the production is not performing overseas (it went to the Soviet Union about two years ago) it travels annually among 44 North American cities and towns.

"When we first came to Victoria in 1948, it took four days to set everything up and another four days to reassemble it in the crates."

But when the production closes in Victoria on Saturday night, almost half the cast and sets will be gone from the building as the cast of the final act winds up the show.

Secretaries Rebel At Mini-Skirt Ban

LONDON (AP) — Two secretaries in the House of Lords have refused to comply with ban on mini-skirts.

The order against mini-skirts was issued by Euan Graham, 42, secretary to the chairman of committees, Labor peer Earl Listowel, 60.

"Mr. Graham asked us not to show so much leg," said

Virginia Moody, Lord Listowel's 20-year-old secretary.

"I gathered the original complaint came from one or more peers, but we cannot find out who complained."

"I can't think who objected. Certainly not Lord Listowel. They are not at all fuddy-duddy in the House of Lords. We were simply asked to lengthen our mini-skirts — but we are not going to do it."

"We are rebelling. The peers do not seem to mind; some of them have come up to us and said they will support our revolt."

There are about 15 female secretaries in the House of Lords. But only Miss Moody and her friend, Patricia Reid, 20, who also works in the records office, wear mini-skirts.

Spain Says Yes

MADRID (AP) — Spaniards voted in large numbers Wednesday and overwhelmingly endorsed Gen. Francisco Franco's blueprint for the future of the country.

Incomplete but decisive returns from a national referendum showed 94 per cent of the voters approved Franco's proposed constitutional changes opening the way for a liberalized monarchy when Franco dies or steps down.

Negative votes amounted to 1.8 per cent. There were 2.7 per cent blank or void ballots.

80 PER CENT

Reports said over 80 per cent of the registered voters had cast ballots in 47 per cent of the nation's 50 provinces. Officials said 19,320,877 Spaniards were eligible.

The referendum—the second in 27 years of Franco power and the first since 1947—was to approve changes he proposed in the nation's organic laws. Actually it was a vote of endorsement for the 74-year-old Spanish strongman and the program he calls Spain's "organic democracy."

MAD CHOICE

Opposition to the referendum was banned. But voters, who were not compelled to vote, had the choice of voting against it. Opposition political groups urged Spaniards to abstain.

The amendments spelled out directives for selection of Franco's successor — either a king or a regent—and provisions for separating the posts of chief of state and chief of government (now both held by Franco), increasing the elective memberships in the Spanish Cortes (legislature) and speeding laws of religious liberty and labor unions.

Explosion Threat Almost Over

When They're Clergy

Women Dislike Women

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England was told by an eminent psychiatrist Wednesday that women priests might distract male church-goers.

At the same time, he said, many women expressed horror and repugnance at having their own sex at the altar. "Disgusting," "unthinkable," "revolting," "shameful" and "the idea makes me sick" were some of the terms he quoted.

IN ESSAY

Dr. Robert F. Hobson, a London University psychiatrist, discussed the problems of sex and church — going in an appended essay to a Church of England report on women in holy orders.

A commission, headed by Dr. Gerald Ellison, Bishop of Chester, was set up by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York three years ago. Its job was to examine the whole problem of having women priests but not to make recommendations one way or the other.

VITAL FACTOR

Dr. Hobson, a member of the commission, wrote: "Adult, genital, sexual feeling is a factor in the relationship of the priest and parishioners, and perhaps it is more important and widespread than is sometimes suggested."

"Such feeling, heterosexual and homosexual, is doubtless of a vital factor in attitudes towards the sex of the priest."

"An argument advanced against the ordination of women is that in public worship men are less likely to distract and stimulate the congregation sexually."

"It is possible that anxieties about the consequences of sexual arousal are significant in some violent expressions of prejudice."

The commission as a whole feared that admission of women to the ministry might divide the Church of England.

Most of the arguments the commission heard against having women priests were based on the standpoint that it was contrary to church tradition from the time of the apostles. Arguments favoring women ministers claimed there was no biblical evidence for excluding them, that temperamentally they were as well-fitted as men and that the priesthood could never be representative until it included both sexes.

Turkey Keeps Eyes on Sea

ANKARA (Reuters) — Turkish Air Force planes were reported Wednesday to have carried out reconnaissance flights over the Mediterranean as Panamanian ships carrying Czechoslovak arms headed toward Cyprus, where Greek-Cypriots outnumbered Turkish-Cypriots four to one.

Turkey warned Tuesday it would possibly use force in an attempt to block the shipment of Czechoslovak heavy arms reaching the island.

Fire Safety Means Happy Holiday

Warning No. 418

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China Wednesday night issued the 418th serious warning against alleged intrusions into her territory by U.S. warships and aircraft. The New China news agency said the intrusions occurred Tuesday and Wednesday.

Merry Christmas and don't burn the house down is the message from the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C.

Here are the association's safety rules for Christmas trees:

- Saw off at least one foot from the butt end and then place tree in cool, shady place with butt end in water.
- Roll it container of water daily, as the tree absorbs it and the water keeps the tree fresh and green. Water should be used.

because fire-retardant chemicals often do more harm than good.

- Be sure the tree is well supported and away from fireplaces, radiators, television sets or other sources of heat. The tree should be placed so it will not block an exit in case of fire.
- Lighted candles or other open flames should never be used on or near Christmas trees.
- Check electric lights and connections. Worn, frayed wires or electric cords must not be used.

● Combustible decorations and flammable reflectors are out. Metal foil "kisses" or tinsel must be kept out of bulb sockets.

- Avoid overloading electric circuits. Accumulations of wrapping paper and the placing of electrical toys under the tree should be avoided as fire hazards.

Drug Manufacturers Meet In Tranquillizer Battle

OTTAWA (CPI) — A generic drug manufacturer says criticism of his firm by a brand-name competitor is a deliberate misstatement of fact arising from fear of competition.

The generic manufacturer, Jules R. Gilbert of Jules R. Gilbert Ltd., Toronto, filed documents with the Commons drug prices inquiry referring to submissions last October by Smith, Kline and French of Canada, Montreal, a brand-name manufacturer.

VARIABLE
Generic manufacturers usually sell their products under the chemical or generic name of the drug. Brand-name manufacturers market a product under a brand name.

Smith, Kline and French had charged that the Gilbert company and another drug firm sell the tranquillizer trifluoperazine with potency variations of such a nature that a patient may suddenly receive a 30-per-cent increase or decrease in dosage. It said prices were only slightly below those of Smith, Kline and French.

Mr. Gilbert's submission maintains that the Smith, Kline and French product is improperly labeled and that his company has received no report from the Federal food and drug directorate that the Gilbert product is either mislabeled or substandard.

Referring to the Smith, Kline and French statement about potency, Mr. Gilbert says "SKF has deliberately made a statement without basis in fact."

If any difference in potency exists, "it is because the SKF product is misbranded."

On price, Mr. Gilbert says the "SKF" price is more than twice that of Gilbert's.

His statement also says the Smith, Kline and French objection last October "is that we are able to market the product too soon for their competitive comfort."

POTENCY LOWER
Smith, Kline and French replied to Mr. Gilbert's submission in a letter to committee chairman Dr. Harry Harley (L-Hilton). It said that scientific data submitted to the committee demonstrated variations of potency and a generally lower level of potency of the Gilbert product than the Smith, Kline and French product.

Smith, Kline and French also said its labelling has "consistently met" the requirements of the food and drug directorate.

'Noah's Ark' Roars Aloft To Pinpoint Space Perils

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A 30th century "Noah's Ark" loaded with thousands of tiny plants and animals rocketed away on a three-day space voyage Wednesday to help U.S. scientists pinpoint the biological hazards of cosmic travel.

The 340-pound Biosatellite, America's first, zoomed into an orbit about 135 miles above earth minutes after it was launched from Cape Kennedy aboard a Delta rocket. It was the last shot of the year from the space centre.

If all goes as planned, the seven-foot satellite will circle earth 47 times and then send its pampered passengers diving back toward a recovery force near Hawaii Saturday afternoon.

Besides answering a number of questions about the basic life processes, the flight results may show subtle changes in animal cells and physiology that could be related to man exposed to the space environment for long durations.

Aboard the Biosatellite in separate air-conditioned compartments for each species are 10,000 fruit flies, 1,000 flour beetles, 560 wasps, 120 frog eggs, 875 amoebae, 13,000 bacteria cells, 78 wheat seedlings, nine pepper plants called "yo lo" wonders, 10,000,000 spores of orange bread mold and 64 blue wild flowers.

Murray recalls gold chunks big as his copper ore

Gold Bricks Proved Real Thing

By KEN WARREN

Canada's oldest active prospector announced his retirement Tuesday but said he still intends to dabble some in the profession he has known for almost 60 years.

And for Gordon Murray, 80, of 1586 Mileva Lane, some of that dabbling may be in the form of a book he hopes to write.

If the book chronicles the man's adventures it should be a thriller cover to cover.

Mr. Murray was the original discoverer of the Thompson, Man., nickel claims where International Nickel invested more than $185,000,000 to establish one of the world's biggest nickel mines.

But to Gordon Murray, who has been in every mining camp in the country, it's another northern Manitoba mining venture which captures his conversation.

It was at Elbow Lake, Man., 200 miles north of Flin Flon, that Mr. Murray discovered free gold lying "all over the ground" in chunks as large as bricks.

Cut It Out With Axe

He picked a 15-pound chunk of copper ore from a table in his study and compared its size with that of a small gold nugget in a ring he had given his wife.

The gold at Elbow Lake was lying around in chunks the size of the copper ore he held, he said.

"The vein was so rich (in gold percentage) he could cut it out with an axe," Mrs. Murray said.

But it was high-grading (theft of the ore) that was part of Elbow Lake's failure.

Mr. Murray said the high-grading reached a point where he had to offer his own men $5 for each $11 worth of ore they uncovered.

Modern 'Creampuffs'

Mr. Murray, who retired last year as president and chairman of Mount Washington Copper Co. of Courtenay, doesn't look a day over 60 and considers modern-day prospectors "creampuffs."

"They have helicopters, station wagons and the very best of food," he said. "We had saw-belly (salt pork), bannock, beans and our legs."

Almost 60 years ago, Mr. Murray embarked on his prospecting career by carrying His Majesty's mail 75 miles through unbroken northern Ontario bush and muskeg.

"I used to run-run, not walk—50 miles a day," he said. "I used to break trails for Mounties and their dog teams, and I haven't seen the dog team that could overtake me."

He showed a 1920 picture postcard taken of himself in the outfit he wore when breaking trails.

His coat, made from unborn caribou hide with wolverine fur lining, was worn by both Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, in separate takes, for their motion picture Rose Marie, he said.

Mr. Murray also showed news clippings of talks he had in 1939 with the Vancouver Board of Trade on the mineral wealth in B.C.'s interior.

"I told them that B.C.'s natural resources were being ex-

Seven in NATO Group

Canada Joins Nuclear Planning Unit

PARIS (CP)—The North Atlantic Alliance has decided to establish a seven-country nuclear planning group, including Canada, to co-ordinate the broad concept of Western nuclear consultation among member countries.

The seven-country body, announced Wednesday, will include four permanent members—the United States, Britain, West Germany and Italy—and three temporary members to serve for 18 months.

Defence Minister Paul Hellyer told a press conference Wednesday night that Canada definitely will be included in the first group of temporaries. The make-up is to be announced in detail within a week or so but other countries are likely to be The Netherlands and Turkey.

This group will in turn report to a newly-established nuclear defence affairs committee which is open to 14 member countries—all but France—but in practice will include only 12, since Iceland and Luxembourg

SINCERELY DEDICATED

What Hellyer means, in effect, is that many countries are aware that Canada has no imperial aspirations and that she is sincerely dedicated to the task of peace. Canada is known to have some moderating influence over American policies. At the same time the inclusion of West Germany likely will reduce German pressures for a finger on the nuclear trigger and thereby possibly reduce Soviet fears of West Germany turning into a nuclear power.

Hellyer also announced: ● That details of the move of the two Canadian air bases in France, at Metz and Marville, will be made public shortly. They are to be relocated in West Germany in a costly move, estimated by one source at more than $1,000,000.

Canada hopes to retain military transport overflight privileges in France after the expiration of next April's deadline for removal of NATO bases from France.

From other Canadian sources it was learned that France has agreed to allow Canadian non-operational personnel at Metz and Marville to remain there until next July. This is to help their children complete the school term in France.

Canadian aircraft, however, will be removed from French soil by the April 1 deadline. Under Canadian revisions, the eight Canadian air squadrons in Europe will be reduced to six, all located in West Germany at Canada's present two bases there—Baden Baden Soellingen and Schweibruken. The air headquarters, now at Metz, likely will be located at a third German centre.

The Canadian nuclear squadrons will be reduced to four from six. The other two squadrons will remain as reconnaissance.

Which whisky do the Jones' really drink?

When it comes to whisky, the Jones' can afford to please themselves. Yet they don't let others dictate their taste. They have taste of their own. Which is why it's not surprising that so many of the Jones' drink Bonded Stock.

This is a smooth, mellow whisky with a flavour you don't have to disguise. One other thing: you don't have to be one of the Jones' to appreciate Bonded Stock. All you need is a taste for good whisky.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whisky since 1832.

Government Loan

Closed Bank Pays Small Depositors

BEIRUT (AP) — Intra, Lebanon's largest bank, forced to close two months ago when it ran out of ready cash, opened its doors a tiny crack Wednesday to start reimbursing small depositors from a special loan advanced by the government.

A small crowd of elderly women, housewives, house maids, typists, small traders and farmers jostled each other as they swarmed to the stricken bank.

Computers Bring Contracts

PARIS (CP) — Canadian industry will receive $14,000,000 in new contracts as a result of NATO's decision to feed its network of radar screens into a computer system, Defence Minister Hellyer said Wednesday.

This program, known as NATO Air Defence Ground Environment (NADAGE), will link 65 European radar screens into a computer system that will speed information on an approaching enemy air attack.

The screens stretch from northern Norway through central Europe to Greece and Turkey. The linkup will be similar to the North American defence system.

Actual date of the contracts and names of the firms concerned are not yet available, Hellyer said.

Grain Shows Two Trends

VANCOUVER (CP) — Exports of grain from British Columbia ports in November totalled 15,565,383 bushels, the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange said Wednesday.

Total for November 1985 was 19,175,316 bushels. Despite the November decline, the August-November total of 70,973,164 bushels is the highest on record for a four-month period, the exchange said.

Following intermission a play, Why the Chimes Rang, will be offered under the direction and production of Peter Underwood. Members of the school's drama club have worked on stage and costume effects.

Prosecutors Weathered, Coppolino Steps Down

FRIEHOOD, N.J. (UPI) — Dr. Carl Coppolino, testifying calmly, Wednesday told the jury trying him for the murder of William Farber that he treated him for a heart attack but did not mark him for death.

He said he pleaded with Farber's wife to hospitalize him, then withdrew from the case hours before the retired army colonel died because both Farber and his wife refused his advice for hospitalization.

INTENSE EFFORTS

After telling his story, the poised and articulate Coppolino withstood intense prosecution efforts to shake him from his testimony. The defence rested its case after Coppolino had spent an hour and 39 minutes in the witness chair.

Defence and prosecution summaries in the sensational case will be made this morning followed by Judge Elven R. Simmull's charge. It then will go to the jury.

NEVER ASKED

Coppolino was never asked while on the stand whether he killed Col. Farber, or specifically whether he had strangled him with a pillow as the state had charged, and he made no statement on his own.

During her previous testimony, Mrs. Farber said, Coppolino hypnotized her into his "loveslave" and murdered her husband out of jealousy when she resisted his suggestions to kill him with a drug.

She testified Coppolino killed the colonel by forcefully pressing a pillow over his head and neck.

Coppolino was asked whether he had ever suggested to Mrs. Farber that her husband "had to go ... had to die," or whether he instructed her to kill him.

"Absolutely not," Coppolino testified.

Two Admit Break-Ins

Two men pleaded guilty to separate charges of breaking and entering Wednesday in central magistrate's court.

Harry Percival Cook, 2751 Spencer, pleaded guilty to breaking into a garage at 17 Eaton, belonging to Henry El. Ilioli, and taking tools in a homemade toolbox valued at just under $100.

LATE RESOLUTION

RCMP Cpl. Robert De Armond said the theft, which occurred April 27, was unsolved until Tuesday when Cook was being investigated on another matter and the tools were found in the trunk of his car.

Cook was remanded to Dec. 22 for sentence.

Barry Raymond Soura of Nanaimo pleaded guilty to breaking into Western O.K. Tire Store on Douglas Street Nov. 4. Soura was brought back by local police from 100 Mile House, where he was under sentence on another charge.

Soura said he and two other men drove from Nanaimo to Victoria, broke into the tire store and stole several tires, returning to Nanaimo. The Crown said one man had pleaded guilty to the offence and a third man is being sought. Sentence was reserved to Dec. 22.

A young sailor pleaded not guilty to breaking and entering, after a short course on legal definition.

Craig Frederick Kemp, 19, of HMCS St. Croix, asked Magistrate William Ostler what was meant by an "indictable offence."

Kemp, who said he was willing to admit breaking and entering 1305 Broad on Tuesday, but would deny presence of intent to commit an offence, pleaded not guilty. Magistrate Ostler explained breaking and entering was prima facie evidence of intent.

Trial was set for Dec. 19.

Fertilizer Sold

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Nitrex AG, Western Europe's largest producer of nitrogen, has announced a contract to deliver 3,000,000 tons of nitrogen fertilizer to China.

A car theft labelled as a "stupid prank" by defence counsel cost Kenneth Wallace Peters, 20, a $50 fine.

Peters, who was working on the Peace River dam project when he committed the offence, pleaded guilty to theft of a truck belonging to Victor Freeman from the Chetwynd Motel, Oct. 2.

Defence counsel said Peters had been having "a night on the town" with Freeman when he decided to take off without permission, in Freeman's truck, for Dawson Creek.

Peters went into the ditch, counsel said, and subsequently paid for $200 damage to the truck. Recently, Freeman demanded an extra $75 and laid the theft charge when Peters didn't pay up.

"Sometimes a stupid prank and a criminal offence are indistinguishable," Magistrate Ostler said.

Hall Draws Shudders

By JOHN MATTERS

Artist Herbert Siebner thinks an old machinegun mounted in the sweeping concrete work would at least make Saanich municipal hall more interesting. It doesn't make any difference whether the gun points toward Victoria or Oak Bay, he said. The issue is that the $625,000 hall, completed only a year ago, looks unfinished.

"They call it 'Style Brutale'—or leave it unfinished," said the award-winning artist. "That may be the vogue, but they should give the front of the hall at least a chunk of rusting iron."

Mr. Siebner, who is a resident of the largest municipality in the Greater Victoria area, thought that if the machinegun or ironwork didn't appeal to councillors, perhaps a sculpture would.

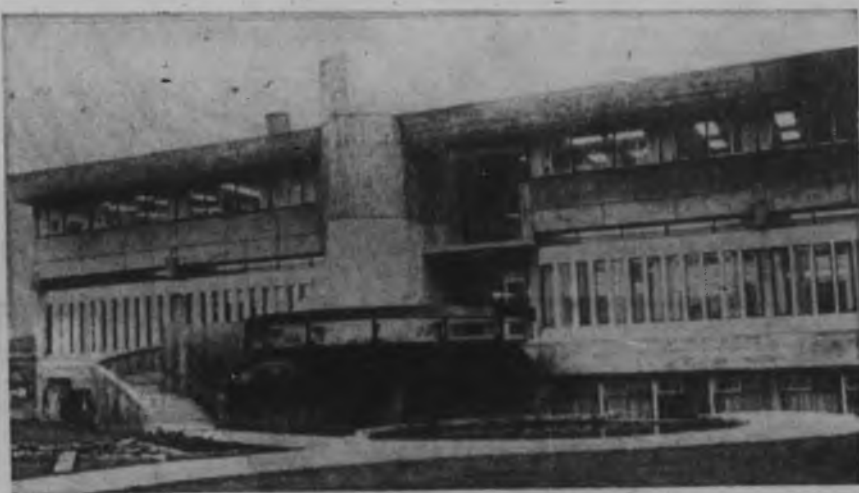

He said he hoped council would start thinking about it now, when the 1967 budget is being mulled over.

Mr. Siebner thought a large sculpture would probably be the most effective, making the grounds on that side of the hall appealing.

Something is needed, he said, to distract from Saanich's inelegant fire and police and health and welfare buildings.

Desegregated

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A three-judge federal court has ordered racial desegregation of all jails and prisoners in Alabama. The court held that state laws requiring racial segregation in jails and prisons violate the federal constitution.

Siebner suggests old gun for this

Teamsters on Holiday In Support of Hoffa

DETROIT (AP)—Thousands of shouting Teamsters voted with dramatic suddenness Wednesday night to quit work for 24 hours in support of their jailed threatened national president, James Hoffa.

But how many actually heeded the scheduled Wednesday midnight walkout was not clear because of the fact that the move apparently was spontaneous and without central leadership.

The vote was taken by 3,000 truckers at a routine business meeting at Hoffa's home local. The holiday motion was made from the floor and was approved overwhelmingly over union officers' objections. Contract clauses prevent such strikes, but unionists called it "just a holiday."

The U.S. Supreme Court this week upheld Hoffa's eight-year prison term for tampering with a Nashville jury trying him for conspiracy.

Character Actress Verna Felton Dies

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Verna Felton, 76, the grandmotherly-looking, sharp-tongued character actress who was a star of December Bride, died Wednesday night in her home after a stroke.

Miss Felton, a native of Salinas, Calif., lived in Nanticoke as a child and, while still young, appeared on the stage of the Plaza Theatre on Yates Street in Victoria, when it was known as The Playhouse.

B.C. CENTENARY

She was invited to return to Vancouver Island in 1958 when she took part in the B.C. centennial celebrations at Nanaimo and other centres.

She also appeared in Pete and Gladys on TV, with Red Skelton and Dennis Day on radio and in such movies as Picnic and vocally only—many Disney features.

Miss Felton served as honorary mayor of Salinas. As such, she often was called upon to visit women's clubs.

"The only thing I can't stand are the long speeches women give at their clubs," she once told an interviewer with a grimace.

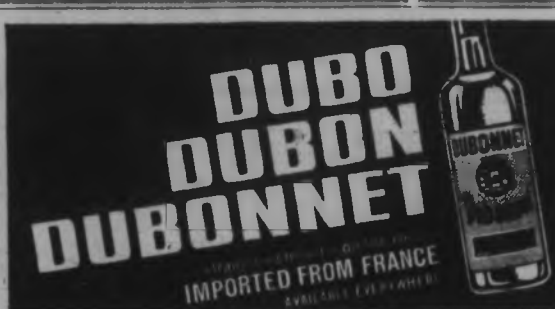

However, she admitted, the job had its benefits:

"I get an air-conditioned car in the summer and a heated one in the winter to take me to a groundbreaking ceremony or ribbon-cutting. All I have to do is jump out of the car, break the ground or cut the ribbon and then jump back in if it's too hot or cold. I'm pretty good with a shovel."

Miss Felton is survived by her son, Lee Miller.

Ailing Queen Mother Doing Much Better

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth left her hospital bed Wednesday and sat in a chair for the first time since undergoing an abdominal operation Saturday. Doctors said the Queen Mother, 66, continued to make satisfactory progress and has been put on a light diet.

Present House In the Clear

OTTAWA (CP)—There are 17 members of the present Parliament who have accepted fees from the publicly-owned CBC but the payments occurred during the previous Parliament and none now is in danger of losing his seat, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday.

He told the Commons in a prepared statement that no MP has been offered or has accepted any payment from the CBC since the present Parliament was formed after the election of Nov. 8, 1965.

The Senate and House of Commons Act says any MP who accepts fees from the public treasury, apart from his salary, must resign his seat or be liable to a fine of $200 for each day he sits in the House after committing the offence.

NOT AUTOMATIC

Mr. Pearson pointed out that the act contains two qualifications to this section. First, the fine is not automatic and, second, action would have to be taken within 12 months of the payment.

His detailed statement was in reply to a written question submitted last spring by Lewis Brand (PC-Saskatoon). There had been suggestions in recent days that as many as 39 MPs might have to resign because of CBC payments.

STATUTE APPLIES

The prime minister said there is no doubt that CBC fees come under the prohibition expressed in the old statute.

"It is also clear that only Parliament itself can determine who is qualified or not qualified and that disqualification in one Parliament has no effect on a subsequent Parliament," he added.

Mr. Pearson did not identify the 17 MPs. There were five Liberals, five Conservatives, five from the New Democratic Party, one Creditiste and one Social Credit member.

MINISTERIAL TIMBER

One of the 17 later became a cabinet minister and another had been a cabinet minister before accepting the fee. No cab-net ministers had accepted CBC payments while in office.

Last February, the justice department wrote to the CBC asking that it "consider the appropriateness of offering to a member of Parliament an honorarium or out-of-pocket expenses for his participation in a program."

Later, in reply to a question by Dr. Brand, State Secretary

LaMarsh identified the member of the present cabinet who had accepted a CBC fee before becoming a minister as Jean-Luc Pepin, energy minister.

She said it was not CBC policy to disclose the amount of fees paid to individuals. Dr. Brand had also sought this information.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson had "glossed over the matter by saying no member of the present Parliament received payments from the CBC."

The fact is, said the Conservative leader, that the CBC received a legal opinion from the justice department in 1964 that acceptance of such payments put a member's seat in jeopardy.

From then on, the CBC's policy was to refuse to make payments to MPs for television appearances.

"Mr. Diefenbaker flayed the government for delaying the answer to Mr. Brand's questions which have been on the order paper since May 16. It was an example of how the government postponed answering queries that showed it in a bad light. Social Credit Leader Thompson said most MPs have received "at some time or another" public funds to cover some type of expenses.

His statement brought howls of protest from both sides of the Commons. When order was restored he said he saw little difference between cases where a member received travel money from the CBC or had a trip subsidized by the external affairs department.

Only Grits Take Time for TV

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of Liberal MPs took time out from Commons duties Tuesday night to watch make-believe MP Quentin Dargens in action on CBC television.

A visitor to the government lobby just off the Commons found about 30 Liberals seated in a semicircle around a TV set watching the program with actor Gordon Pinsent in the role of the fictional Manitoba MP.

A peek into the opposition

Leader Diefenbaker showed he, too, is interested in Dargens. He asked State Secretary LaMarsh to use her influence to get him a transcript of the period Tuesday, Opposition Dargens show last week.

CBC Offer Approval Days Away

MONTREAL (CP)—The Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada will likely accept a CBC offer of a seven-per-cent salary increase by the end of the week, a union official said Wednesday.

The offer was made after the union sought readjustments in pay because of the rising cost of living. It represents 2,300 clerical, sales and some program personnel, including announcers, across Canada.

Costly, Too

Lowly Char Choice Tidbit

OTTAWA (CP)—To the Eskimos he's "ukluksuk" and to scientists "Salvelinus alpinus." But to thousands of diners the Arctic char has become known as simply mighty fine eating.

J. G. Hunter of the fisheries research board's Arctic biological station at St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., traces development of the char in the current issue of Fisheries of Canada, the federal fisheries department's monthly magazine.

STATUS ITEM

"The importance of the species in North America has been confined in the past to its use as food for local use. In the past 10 years it has achieved status on the market as a luxury food item and is now an excellent sports fish."

Commercial exploitation began on the Labrador coast in the early 1940s and has reached a peak production of 200,000 pounds.

SHIP TO SOUTH

Commercial catches totalling some 100,000 pounds a year now also originate from Ungava, Probuher and Cambridge bays and the rivers to the west of the Mackenzie. These are shipped frozen to southern markets (where they retail for $1.30 to $1.40 a pound) and are primarily sea-run fish, as opposed to landlocked char which are of minor importance in North America.

CATCH SWELL

The sports fishery for Arctic char has been expanding rapidly and this catch now is estimated at more than 50,000 pounds annually.

Char occurs in two main forms. One migrates to the sea in summer to feed and returns to fresh water to pass the winter. The other remains in fresh water throughout its life and is called landlocked.

The char has an elongated body typical of salmonids and in the sea-run condition it silvery with a deep blue or greenish blue on the back and upper sides. As it approaches spawning condition, coloration changes gradually to orange and to a range of reddish hues from bright red to deep vermilion.

FOUND AT POLE

The char is found near the North Pole and as far south as water temperatures of about 50 degrees Fahrenheit can be located.

Char spawn in September and October on lake or river bottoms where suitable gravel and small rocks occur and where winter ice creates no problems. From 3,000 to 5,000 eggs are deposited by one female char. Water temperatures at spawning beds are generally less than 39 degrees.

OUT TO SEA

Young char feed on minute plants and animals. When they're six to eight inches long they migrate to sea, usually in early spring and return to fresh water from mid-August to late September.

Full-grown char — and that takes some 20 years — average a bit over two feet in length and weigh about eight pounds. Some char live as long as 40 years. Char have been caught in North America at just over 27 pounds and in the Soviet Union at 34 pounds.

The size of char populations is controlled by the availability of suitable fresh water. The slow rate of growth — a one-year old char is often under two inches — and limited population size results in low production of the species.

Tunnel Man Killed

REVELSTOKE (CP) — A 37-year-old laborer was killed in a tunnel Tuesday while working in one of the diversion tunnels at Mica Dam on the Columbia River, 85 miles north of here.

Authorities identified the man as Gilbert Trumpp, 63, of North Surrey. They said the accident occurred while a crew was working in one of the two 45-foot diversion tunnels.

FORM COLLAPSES
They said concrete was being poured when a form collapsed, killing the worker. None of the other workmen was injured.

Cause of the collapse of the form has not immediately been covered, said an official of B.C. Hydro, but an investigation is under way.

Trumpp was married and father of two children.

Canadian Black Brant Soars for Germans.

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — A Canadian Black Brant III rocket thundered aloft from the frozen barrens 15 miles east of here this week, carrying 135 pounds of scientific instruments to a height of about 95 miles.

The experiment was carried out for the University of Bonn and witnessed by German scientists.

In Russian North

English Students Find Soviet Pad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some sharp electronic detective work by a group of English schoolboys is being credited with "discovering" a possible third Russian spaceport.

If the lads — and the computer they used — are right, the Russians this year for the first time have been launching some of their espionage satellites from a new site south of Archangel, in the Soviet north.

The only Russian spaceports previously publicized are Tyuratam, sometimes misnamed Baikonur, east of the Aral Sea, and Kapustin Yar, near Volgograd.

The Russians launch men and heavy, recoverable reconnaissance satellites from Tyuratam and lighter scientific satellites from Kapustin Yar.

Or March 17, the Soviet put up an espionage satellite which differed from previous ones in that it was launched into an orbit carrying it much farther north than any of its predecessors.

This was Cosmos 112. Its orbital path, ranging 72 degrees north and south of the equator, carried it over America's northern radar missile defence lines.

It also gave Cosmos 112 a slanting photographic look at Thule Air Force base in Greenland, only 250 miles north of the spacecraft's path.

An part of their class work, boys at England's Kettering Grammar School, the equivalent of a North American high school, did some sharp radio listening and, starting with Cosmos 112, tracked a number of Soviet satellites.

They fed their tracking information, including data on orbital intersections, into a computer and got some surprising results.

The upshot was that the high inclination spacecraft — according to the computer — had been launched from a site at 63 degrees north latitude and 41 degrees east longitude, somewhere south of Archangel.

Surveyor Plans Pinched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, feeling the economy pinch, is eliminating three Surveyor moon landing craft "from current budget planning."

The Surveyor program of unmanned landings on the moon achieved an early success when the first of a planned series of seven sent back photographs indicating smooth lunar surfaces were firm enough to support spacecraft.

But Surveyor 2 was a failure. NASA still plans five more Surveyors, but said Tuesday it was eliminating a group of three heavy Surveyors it had planned for the future.

Executive Desks Save Cash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government saved $35,400,000 this year by such economies as keeping its cars an extra year and limiting executive-type desks to executives, according to the general services administration.

Lawson Knott, who heads GSA, the government's purchasing agency, said the biggest saving came from $36,200,000 in new buying that was cancelled or deferred.

GSA restricted executive-type furniture to officials in pay grade GS 25 or above. Previously, personnel in GS 15 had been eligible for the $350 desks. They're now limited to $200 desks. Everybody else gets $75 steel desks.

Easy Flight Insurance Ban Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Two key points emerged Tuesday as a Commons committee started looking for answers to the relationship between sales of flight insurance at airports and aircraft sabotage.

● Is easy availability of this insurance an enticement to sabotage as a profitable murder method or means of suicide?

● Would there be a public outcry over removal of coin-operated vending machines or insurance counters from airports?

The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association appeared before the committee with a brief contending the first point is true and the second false.

Transport department officials told the MPs available records do not suggest "any direct correlation" between vending machines and sabotage.

In fact, Deputy Minister J. R. Baldwin said, a study "tended to show there was no relation."

SEES NO LINK

He added that the department had allowed such services to meet public demand. While there still was demand and no link with sabotage had been established, the department felt the service should continue.

CALPA, which said its 1,100 "live constantly under the threat of aircraft sabotage," listed in its brief 11 accidents in Canada, the United States and Mexico since 1949 where "evidence is sufficient to connect directly insurance with sabotage and to underline airport-vended flight insurance as the most prevalent type."

URGES BAN

P. C. Hamilton, association president, urged the committee to back legislation outlawing sale of insurance at airports, either through vending machines or at special insurance counters.

CALPA objected to the virtual anonymity of buyers under these circumstances, where there is no background checking of the sort a qualified insurance agent would require before issuing a policy.

Two crashes on CALPA's list occurred in Canada, the first and the last. Both involved planes of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The Sept. 9, 1949, crash of a

DC-3 near Quebec City was the first proved case of blowing up a plane for murder. Albert Guay, Quebec City jeweller, derelict had taken out a $10,000 killed 23 persons including his wife because of his love affair before the plane took off.

A DC-6B crashed July 8, 1955, near 100 Mile House, B.C., killing all 52 aboard. Investigation showed a device exploded in a lavatory, blowing the tail off.

Garden Notes

Birds Welcome

By M. V. CHESNUT

At our house, we are having more fun than a picnic this winter watching the birds that frequent our garden. We feed them regularly and I am convinced they have some method of communication — perhaps a bird grapevine of sorts — whereby they pass the word about the free cafeteria in the Chesnut backyard.

I don't put out my hard-earned cash for wild bird seed just for the fun of it, nor through any sloppy sentimentalism. I believe strongly that attracting birds to your garden pays real and substantial dividends, for each of the little beggars can eat his weight in bugs and caterpillars and outworn every day.

They can be annoying at times — they cleaned out all my red currants last summer before I got the nets over the bushes — but I've seen what happens in birdless gardens where the family cat is allowed to patrol at will, and I'd sooner share my currants and pea seedlings with my feathered helpers than to combat the terrific build-up of pests that occurs when birds shun your garden.

We have several homemade bird feeders of the simplest possible design, none of which cost any money. The first is an ancient tin tray which I suspect came originally from a beer parlor, as it advertises a well-known brew. We tried hanging it by wires from a branch of a tree but it got blown around too much in the wind, so I took it down and nailed it to a broomstick as a pedestal. This was thrust into the ground within sight of our kitchen window, and there are always a few birds perched near it waiting patiently for our scraps to be dumped into the tray.

One trouble with this simple "light deck" feeder is the rain. The scraps become sodden and look much less appetizing, so our next affair had a roof on it. Built in the shape of a tiny coldframe, it is a simple box with a sloping roof. The front — the biggest side — is facing our windows, and we knocked out the side and substituted a sheet of plastic so we could watch what goes on inside. The back was left open to provide entry for the birds and, while they were a little shy at first going in under the low roof, they feed there perfectly at home now.

We keep a special carton in the corner of the kitchen alongside the sink, and all our birdworthy scraps go into it instead of into the garbage. Bits of stale bread and toast, chunks of fat — and gristle from the roasts, suet and the like all go to the feeders.

When we are feeling especially hospitable, we treat our guests to perhaps a 10-cent package of sunflower seeds or salted peanuts, and an occasional small handful of raisins. The wild bird seed mixture we buy for 12 cents a pound from our favorite flour-and-feed store.

Still another feeder is made from a solid length of birch log with the bark on — a log about eight inches through and 14 inches long. One-inch holes were bored in the log with a brace and bit, and packed with a mixture of suet and seeds. Smaller holes are bored to take short lengths of wooden dowel which serve as alighting perches, and the whole thing is hung in a tree by an eyescrew in one end.

A neighbor of mine who knows more about birds than I ever hope to learn taught me to put out a small dish of coarse sand or grit on the feeders. He tells me birds suffer terribly when weather conditions don't permit them to recharge their gizzards with coarse, gritty sand and I do notice my feathered customers go for their dish of sand in a big way.

ART BUCHWALD and the Dove-Like Hawks

Profiles in Courage

WASHINGTON — My friend, Murray, is the managing editor of one of the largest newspapers in the country. When the President of the United States gets mad he calls Murray, and Murray just shrugs it off.

My friend, Harry, heads a billion-dollar trade association and his word is law when it comes to the censorship of motion pictures.

My friend, Sam, is chief of protocol to the most powerful nation in the world, and he is on a first-name basis with almost every head of state.

My friend, Sydney, is the press secretary to the leader of a country that numbers over 130,000,000 Americans in population.

All these friends have one thing in common. Their wives get angry when they watch pro-football on television.

Last Sunday, Murray, Jocko, Harry, Sam and Sydney were invited over to my house to watch the Washington Redskins play the Dallas Cowboys in living color on TV. Each of them said he'd be delighted to come and was looking forward to the afternoon.

At 3:45 Murray arrived. "It's good you came early," I said. "The game doesn't start until four."

"I have to leave at four," Murray said. "I just wanted to see the kickoff."

"But Murray," I said, "you can't leave that early. It's going to be a good game. I'll call your wife and tell her you'll be home at seven."

"Don't do that," he shouted. "She doesn't know I'm here. I told her I was going out to buy her a Christmas present." "What kind of a man are you?" I said, "that you won't even stand up for your rights to watch pro-football?" "I can watch pro-football any time I want to," he said angrily. "But I'd rather spend the time carrying beds upstairs and listening to by kids fighting in the living room. Wouldn't anybody?"

Before I could answer, the phone rang. It was Jocko. He was whispering, "I can't get out of the door. She says if I got time to go over to your house to watch pro-football, I have time to paint the playroom."

"What did you tell her?"

"I said I had only one day a week to relax and I wasn't going to spend it messing around in the basement."

"What color are you going to paint the playroom?"

"Light green," he replied, and hung up.

Just then Harry came in. He threw his overcoat on the couch.

"Did you have any trouble with your wife?" I asked him.

"Are you kidding? I have a wonderful wife. Anything I want to do is fine with her. She's a jewel, the dearest woman a man could have."

"Where are you going?" I asked him, as he started putting on his coat.

"Just taking about her made me homesick. I think I'll spend the afternoon with her instead of watching the ball game."

"That means she wouldn't let you stay?"

He put his muffler around his throat. "Let me know what the score was."

Sam was the next one to arrive. He didn't seem to be worried a bit. Until the phone rang. "Is Sam there?" his wife wanted to know.

"I'm not sure," I said. "I'll look around."

Sam picked up the phone. "Ah right, all right. A load of bread and two quarts of milk. Well, what did you think I went out for?"

Sydney didn't even bother to call, so I found myself watching the game alone. But not for long.

My wife came in and said, "As long as no one is here, you can carry down all the toys from the attic for the Salvation Army."

There may be a lot of hawks in Washington, but when it comes to watching pro-football you'll find nothing but doves in every home.

Marriage Wobbly

HOLLYWOOD UNANIM — The trouble in the Lana Turner-Bob Eads marriage is the problem of career femininity — some on his side then here. But now he has formed a partnership with Clint Eastwood, and it looks as though they will soon be in production in Italy with Burt Reynolds — Clint starring, Bob producing. Meanwhile, Lana and her husband are still being seen together, and are, in fact, living together at her home Lana will not be going to Italy.

Both Frank Sinatra and young wife Mia have bad colds but are doing what the doctor says they shouldn't — ignoring the whole sneezing, sniffing thing. Did you know that when Sinatra is at Jilly's in New York, they put a red light outside the late night restaurant so the faithful will know the leader is in residence? At Buckingham Palace, they have the flag flying when the Queen is there. Frankie will get around to that in due time.

Vanessa Redgrave signed to play Gloriana in Charge of the Light Brigade — for ex-husband Tony Richardson. This project was formerly owned by British producer Herbert Wise. It was partly responsible for him going broke. But when I saw Herbert recently in New York he was all smiles and going to see a publisher about his semi-autobiographical book, Spring — and Autumn in Park Lane. "I've had the Spring," said the sprightly 74-year-old, adding, "and I've had the Autumn."

Dorothy Kern is the girl most mentioned for The Graduate, which Mike Nichols is now preparing for Joe Levine Productions. I don't know how much the original Valentine's Day Massacre cost in terms of blood and money, but Roger Corman's version for 20th Century-Fox with Jason Robards, Jr. is budgeted at $3,500,000, five times what was shelled out for his Wild Angels with the defunct Nancy Sinatra Jr.

Shirley MacLaine has invited the entire cast of the Broadway Pajama Game production to her Gambit premiere on Broadway, Dec. 21. Shirley, as you may know, was discovered for Hollywood by Hal Wallis when she was substituting for the star, Carol Maury. The question is, will Shirley herself be able to attend the movie premiere? She is still working in Women Times Seven in Paris.

There's No Best Way

Two true stories tell a tale of America — a tale of how Americans think.

The great anthropologist and student of human culture, Dr. Margaret Mead, came one day to address a group of American university women about the different ways of raising children.

She explained that in some cultures she had studied, children are socialized before they are two years old and certain standards of behavior are already inculcated.

In other cultures, she went on to say, this process comes much later in the child's life.

In America, she said, it happens at all, it usually happens after the children are four and before they are six, and conscience is the main impetus. There are the learned lecturers, lots of different ways of bringing up children.

address, a young college woman rose in the rear of the room and asked: "Well, you have told us about all these ways of bringing up children, but which is the best way?" And Margaret Mead replied: "That is a typically American question!"

Dr. Mead was right. The girl, like most other Americans, had assumed not only that there was a right way, but that all you had to do was to decide which one it was and you could choose it!

And now the second story. A well-known American writer was visiting India some years ago, meeting with the leading thinkers and philosophers of that storied land of sages.

As the climax to his trip, he spent some hours with Pandit Nehru discussing the various political difficulties which were facing the world community.

The American visitor summed up what he thought were the basic questions of conflict, and then, turning to the Indian Prime Minister, asked:

"These, it seems to me, are the problems we face. Mr. Nehru, if you were an American, what would you suggest that America do?"

The wise Indian leader took a moment before replying, not to overwhelm his listener, and then slowly spoke these significant words:

"An Indian could not answer your question because he could not ask it — your way. To us, it is not possible to ask, 'What should America do?' Only Americans ask this kind of question. We would ask the question as follows: 'What should America be? When we know what we are, we will know what to do!'"

Unhappily, Americans have the notion that, unlike all other peoples, they can make up their minds regarding what is the best way to do things, and then proceed to do them.

value-system must be tied into a style-of-life, and that simply choosing to do what is right from time to time, is not enough.

Men must first have some notion regarding what it is they are or want to be, before what they do about solving their problems can truly reflect their deepest hopes about life's meaning.

If we have a view of life, which leads us toward an attempt to actualize in or lives the ideas which we truly believe in, then our day-to-day activity will begin to reflect more than just doing, but also believing.

What is more, if we would cultivate such a view, we would stop measuring the whole world by what we think is best for them. For instead of thinking of the best way as our way, we would begin to understand a higher truth: Our way must be our best way, even as other peoples have made their way their best way.

Constable Gets Medal

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police Constable John Fitzgerald will receive the British Empire Medal today for chasing and capturing a man in 1965 after being shot four times in the legs.

Gordon James McEllistrum, 38, was later sentenced to 10 years concurrent on charges of attempted armed robbery and attempted murder.

Sewer Issue

Saanich Fear: Fleece

People would be "fleece" if they accepted Saanich's price for sewer service in the Wende-Harrop area, Coun. William Noel said Tuesday night.

The municipality has proposed that approximately 40 property owners pay annual assessments ranging from $105 to $136, the highest of any sewer area in Saanich.

Coun. Noel spoke at a meeting of council's public works committee, attended by a delegation of Wende-Harrop residents.

LOCAL PETITION

A local improvement petition taken in the area during the summer received more than the required 60 per cent majority.

However, some residents say the poll was taken when many people were on holidays and did not reflect the true feeling of the area.

They want the petition and subsequent bylaw invalidated and another taken.

OUT OF BLUE

They also complain that the sewer system apparently was first put in during 1965 for a nearby school. The next thing they knew, they were being asked to share the cost.

The school's contribution was set at $4,000 and the residents' contribution at $8,000.

The works committee decided to ask municipal officials for a report on the possibility of alternate cost-sharing arrangements.

Crosswalk Request Rejected

An attempt by a mother to get a crosswalk across Foul Bay Road was turned down Tuesday by B committee of Oak Bay council because there wasn't sufficient school children crossing the road to merit it.

Foul Bay Road is on the Oak Bay-Victoria boundary.

Mrs. Marie Reeves, 2034 Chaucer, used for her reasons:

- Population of Bank Street School had doubled.

- Traffic on Foul Bay Road had increased considerably since the extension of Henderson Road and the building of the University.

- Spacing of traffic lights does not take care of the traffic from Safeway and with a larger new Safeway opening, the situation could only worsen.

The committee will write Mrs. Reeves pointing out there are not enough children on the east side of Foul Bay Road attending the school and will write the school principal asking him to circularize parents of children on the east side of Foul Bay Road.

Train Hits Barrier At Least 15 Hurt

CHICAGO (UPI) — A one-car rapid transit train full of commuters smashed into a barrier Wednesday, injuring at least 15. Some said the toll was as high as 35 and Mayor Albert Smith of Skokie claimed 15 people were sent to hospital. One witness said the train came into the station, was practically stopped, when it suddenly lurched ahead and ran into the barrier.

British Urge UN Action

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — Britain provided the Security Council Wednesday night to show a "due sense of urgency" about the Rhodesian problem and order mandatory selective economic sanctions against the breakaway colony without delay.

Lord Caradon, the chief British delegate, made the appeal after the council had heard strong Soviet criticism of Britain's proposals and support for them from The Netherlands.

The 15-nation body agreed to resume debate on the issue tonight.

PRIVATE TALKS

Consultations will take place privately in the meantime in hopes of reconciling African demands and Britain's own more-limited list of embargoes on a dozen key Rhodesian exports.

In particular, the Africans want an oil embargo. Nikolai T. Fedorenko, the Soviet delegate, supported this.

Pedro Berro of Uruguay, council president, proposed to break off the Rhodesia debate today to take up a recommendation to extend the UN peace-keeping mandate in Cyprus, which expires Dec. 26.

AWAKE OF URGENCY

Dr. Berro said he was aware of the urgency of the Rhodesia problem and had tried to take account of both questions by setting one meeting on Cyprus and another to follow it, on Rhodesia.

Earlier in debate, the fifth day of the council's consideration of the Rhodesian issue, Fedorenko accused Britain of collusion with the "racist regime" in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, and of dealing with it behind the backs of the African majority.

Without a total embargo, the sanctions list is worthless, he said.

Russia is "ready to co-operate with the African countries in providing all-round assistance to the people of Zimbabwe in its just and lawful fight."

Zimbabwe is the African name for Rhodesia.

Dr. J. G. de Beus, The Netherlands delegate, said Holland could not accept all the African amendments and the best way of dealing with the situation is through private consultations to try to obtain a generally acceptable resolution.

Mine Riches Surpassing B.C.'s Forests

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Donald Brothers is on his way towards making mineral production the number one industry in British Columbia.

The 43-year-old lawyer from Trail announced last May he had his eye set on nudging the giant forest products industry out of first place as B.C.'s top money maker.

On Wednesday, when he announced a new all-time high mineral production record of $331,700,000 had been set this year, he thought he was close to achieving that goal.

"I'll bet you by the end of this year we'll be as close to them (forest products) as possible, if not ahead. But we'll have to wait until the end of the fiscal year which ends in March, when all the figures are in," said Mr. Brothers.

IT'S SPECTACULAR

"It's spectacular, almost unbelievable, what has happened since I became minister 2½ years ago," he said in an interview.

"Gross mineral production was then about $225,000,000 and we had no idea it would reach $300,000,000 in this short a period."

"And if the oil industry can drill wells this winter which will indicate the Alberta Rainbow field extends into northeastern British Columbia, the sky's the limit — there's no telling where we can go from here."

B.C.'s Bank Plans Win Royal Stamp

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than two years of parliamentary delays, the private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia became law Wednesday.

The measure received royal assent from Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, shortly after the Senate concurred with amendments passed earlier by the Commons.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The new Bank of Western Canada has received its certificate from the Treasury Board in Ottawa, president James E. Coyne announced Wednesday. The certificate was the last major official requirement to be met before the bank opens.

Rathie: Out?

Vancouver Mayoral Shocker

Campbell Winning

VANCOUVER (Special) — Favored Mayor William Rathie apparently went down to defeat Wednesday in a two-way race for reelection.

The mayor-elect will be Tom Campbell, the only member of Vancouver's redwing city council from the sprawling east end of Canada's third largest community.

With 96 of the 162 polls reported, Campbell had 38,744 votes and Rathie 38,465—a margin of almost 1,300 for the young alderman and only six small polls to send in their returns.

Vancouver was for the first time electing all of its civic officials at once—mayor, aldermen and parks and school leaders.

Air Dispute Report Ignored

GRITS WON'T GIVE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government stood off an angry opposition attack in an emergency Commons debate Wednesday and refused to back down from its determination to outlaw a countrywide strike of air traffic controllers set for next Tuesday.

Revenue Minister Benson and Transport Minister Pickersgill said flatly the cabinet will not agree to the controllers' demands—supported by opposition critics—for adoption of a wage report made last month by Judge John B. Robinson.

Mr. Benson, who was to continue negotiations with the controllers Wednesday night, said adoption of the judge's wage formula would mean a 40-per cent pay increase for the 800 control tower men over the last two years.

MEET AGAIN

The Wednesday night negotiations went on for 2½ hours and the parties agreed to meet again this afternoon. Mr. Benson stayed in his office awaiting a break in the deadlock, but did not personally attend the meeting.

He said progress is being made in the renewed negotiations.

The emergency debate erupted after the government gave notice of its plans to introduce legislation outlawing the strike and to seek overriding sittings Friday night and Saturday in order to get it through Parliament.

Details were not revealed.

Commissioner Rules

Bug Tape Contents To Be Aired

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commissioner R. A. Sargent ruled Wednesday the tape recordings of bugged conversations at the Nov. 4-7 convention of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada will be made public.

He said counsel at the royal commission inquiry into the bugging and members of the press will be allowed to listen to the tapes. He ruled Tuesday that he would hear the tapes.

The commissioner made his decision after a lengthy argument from union lawyer John Laxton, who submitted that the inquiry's terms of reference did not give him the power to hear the tapes.

The six reels were seized Nov. 7 from room 309 of the Ritz Hotel. Private detectives Bud Graham and Richard Griffin said they recorded conversations picked up by hidden transmitters in second-floor rooms occupied by union delegates.

Mr. Graham said earlier he was hired to spy on the union by Pat O'Neal, western regional organizer of the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

WANTED EVIDENCE

He said he was first approached by Cpl. Harry Reed and Constable E. P. Oulette of the RCMP security and intelligence branch, then by Mr. O'Neal, who wanted evidence of a conspiracy against his union.

Mr. Laxton said the Canadian union did not want to appear it had something to hide in objecting to the playing of tapes, but said the hearing of the tapes would amount to an invasion of privacy.

"It would be denying the validity of the premise on which the inquiry is based—that the invasion of privacy is improper," the lawyer said.

Guilty—of Possession

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former Vancouver policeman was found guilty Wednesday night of possession of part of the $1,200,000 in mutilated money stolen from a Vancouver warehouse in February 1965.

Convicted was Joseph Percival, 37. He will be sentenced Friday.

The B.C. Supreme Court jury returned a not guilty verdict on a similar charge against James McDougall, 32, a former Vancouver real estate salesman.

Earlier Wednesday, Mr.

Justice Victor Dryer directed the jury to return a not guilty verdict on charges against the two men of robbing a Canadian Pacific Merchandising Services warehouse of the money.

Most of the bills had been pushed with three dime-size holes and the money was destined for Ottawa to be destroyed.

The men were arrested in a portion of the mutilated Edmonton earlier this year money was recovered in the room.

All but $15,000 of the money was recovered in Victoria.

Shotguns to Roar For City's Needy

The Colonist 500 Fund had a grand $823.77 day Wednesday but continues to lag almost $400 behind last year's fund total Dec. 15 of $9,262.69.

This weekend Victoria Gun Club holds its annual charity turkey, ham and bacon shoot at the club's Albert Head grounds.

The gun club, annual donors to the fund, has already donated $200 this year, largest single gift to date.

The shoot will be held Satur-

All contestants need to know is how to point a gun and pull a trigger to compete for a ham, turkey or bacon. Entrants are graded according to ability and will compete against shooters of equal skill.

For more experienced marksmen the shoot will be a kind of warmup to the B.C. Trapshoot- ing Championships to be held at

Jets Came with Scream

HANOI — This North Vietnamese capital city was once more plunged into war with the American bombing raids of Tuesday and Wednesday — the longest, the most violent and perhaps the most menacing to the future of this city's people. (See Page 3.)

The people Wednesday relived the tension and danger first experienced when Hanoi was bombed last June and July and when defences first were put to the test.

Discipline and vigilance now have become a national duty. Within a minute of the sirens wailing their alert, civilians took shelter in slit trenches. Lines of bicycles and pedicabs were abandoned, as were two precious baskets of bananas underneath my hotel window by a peasant woman.

From every house men rushed out wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles.

They took up positions behind trees and watched the first aircraft approach. I saw my hotel barman turn soldier as he loaded his gun and prepared to take aim at the raiders.

Ground view of F-105 bomber

Hanoi Had Defence Plan All Prepared With Discipline, Vigilance Everywhere

The sirens gave plenty of warning — as soon as the aircraft had come within 20-to-30 kilometers (12-to-21) miles.

Watching the raid with me from the hall of the hotel were two Indian and one Polish member of the International Commission. Air raid defence personnel drove away all observers during the raid. An official interpreter came to my second-floor balcony and said to me politely but firmly — "you are a foreigner, we are responsible for your safety to the press service of the ministry of foreign affairs."

Then the raid began. The first wave was heralded by a crescendo of screaming which became almost unbearable as the flight of aircraft passed over the centre of the city. The anti-aircraft guns, which had been firing a few sporadic bursts here and there, suddenly became deafening as they joined with the burst of explosions. The men behind the trees and crouching by walls joined in with rifle fire.

DA NANG, South Vietnam (UPI) — Viet Cong guerrillas, apparently obeying Hanoi's order to avenge alleged U.S. bombing raids on Hanoi over-ran a U.S. marine outpost Wednesday causing heavy casualties.

HONG KONG (UPI) — China Thursday described American air raids against the Hanoi area as a "crayon escalation" of the Vietnam war and charged that the Soviet Union was collaborating in the raids.

The largest Safeway Store in B.C. marked the opening of the 32-store Harbor Park shopping development.

April will mark the completion of Harbor Park at which time another ceremony will take place.

Alberni's Douglas Fir Will Picture History

PORT ALBERNI — A hunk of Douglas fir will soon be going east compliments of the Port Alberni city council, to help the city of Galt with its centennial project.

Max Saltzman MP, wrote asking for a 20-inch section of Douglas fir. He said he was willing to pay the freight.

The fir would be used to designate events of historical significance with the growth rings of the tree.

At the suggestion of Mayor Hammer, council decided to provide the slice of fir and provide the shipping costs.

A chunk 54 inches in diameter and 20 inches deep will be on its way shortly.

Cumberland Museum

Provincial Aid Available

CUMBERLAND — British Columbia has more than 137 museums in operation, with more opening up every week. They are of various kinds including historical and nature museums.

Such museums in towns and cities throughout B.C. can look forward to more assistance from the Provincial Museum in Victoria, according to George Moore, advisor for the department of recreation and conservation.

Mr. Moore spoke to Cumberland Chamber of Commerce and explained the assistance available to them.

He said it was always a good idea to relate chamber and the museum, and the museum should tell the story of its area, and not become a warehouse of old articles.

In his opinion, articles for the museum should not be purchased unless they cannot be secured by other means. He suggested articles which cannot be donated for any reason, might be secured on a loan basis for a specific period of time.

Mr. Moore explained it was a mistake to display everything at once.

He said "the articles should be rotated for display and showed the meeting ways to display including panels. The remainder of the articles are kept in a workshop for cleaning and repair ready to be displayed again when the time is right."

Mr. Moore inspected the articles in the museum and was particularly fascinated with the embossed metal walls and old printing presses.

He also noted some pictures of Victoria which he said even the capital city museum did not possess.

Members learned that all facilities of the provincial museum are at the disposal of local museums. He named Phillip Ward, formerly of the London Museum, who is now with the provincial government, as an expert in repair and restoration of museum articles.

He also said his department hopes to build a bank of articles which will be available on loan to various museums in the province.

Trucks Wait All Night To Help Flood Victims

DUNCAN—The Cowichan and Koksilah rivers have gone down and no more families had to be evacuated. Tuesday night's rain, however, forced the evacuation of two Cowichan Indian families. They are now staying in the Duncan armories.

Other Indian families refused to leave their homes Tuesday night but trucks were ready all through the night in case of an emergency.

The evacuated families came from the Klem Klem Alutz area of the Cowichan Indian reserve. Most roads, closed because of floods Tuesday, were passable during Wednesday.

Cost May Kill Alberni Pollution Study

'Is There a Price Tag on Our Health?'

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

PORT ALBERNI — "How can you put a price tag on the health of the people?" That was the shocked reaction of pollution fighter Colin Wilson to a suggestion that pollution research may be curtailed because of cost.

Wilson

University of British Columbia reported on its study of respiratory cases in the Alberni Valley, saying the "result was inconclusive."

The head of the study, Dr. D. O. Anderson, said a major study would last two years and study the health of 200 families. He said the cost would be $250,000.

STAFF TIME

He said the inconclusive results of the pilot study raise the question of whether this much money, and the time of scarce technical staff, "would be justified."

Mr. Wilson, recently appointed federal returning officer for Comox-Alberni, was amazed at this attitude.

MORE WORK

"While we are pleased with what has been done by the researchers, much more lies ahead."

The project studied the respiratory ailments of Grade 1 students in the Alberni, and contrasted them with ailments of Grade 1 students in the comparison city, Chilliwack.

CHEST PROBLEMS

Chilliwack had more respiratory cases than Alberni, but less than Port Alberni.

"That's just chest problems," Mr. Wilson said. "They admitted other problems occur more frequently here."

SORE EYES

The UBC study found the Alberni Valley had higher incidence of eye inflammation, headache, feverishness and nausea.

"What about Emphysema?" Mr. Wilson said.

VIETNAM WAR

He quoted the U.S. Secretary of Welfare, speaking to the third conference on air pollution, who said:

"Air pollution is a killer more deadly than the Vietnam war. More people die of emphysema than on the field of battle."

PILOT STUDY

Dr. Anderson said the pilot study was undertaken to determine if there was need for a full-scale investigation.

He said acute respiratory disease were linked to kraft-mill pollution, the incidence at Chilliwack should have been lower than at both Alberni Valley cities.

Dr. Anderson appeared to cast doubt on the need of a future study.

GOVERNMENT HIT

Mr. Wilson, co-chairman of the Citizens' Committee on Pollution, said "this small study has only indicated the need for more studies at all levels."

"Government and government agencies are not pulling their weight in trying to solve air pollution."

Two Appear for Gang Assault

NANAIMO — Carol Ann Gibbs, 15, Wellington. Wednesday was remanded for sentence until Dec. 28.

She appeared before Magistrate Eric Winch for her part in the Monday gang attack upon two sailors from the ship Angeline.

She and six others had lured the sailors across town to Harwood, whereupon three boys of the group attacked the men with fence pickets.

Because she had no previous record, Magistrate Winch allowed her to return home, and to continue working.

However, she is to observe a dusk curfew, be delivered to and from work, stay out of downtown Nanaimo unless with her parents, and to have no association with any member of the group.

Edward Dye, 28, of Wellington, appeared for the same offense, and was remanded until Thursday morning without plea.

He is free on $500 bail.

Earlier two girls were sent to a home for girls for their part in the attack.

Johnston Road Waiting

ALBERNI — The reconstruction of Johnston Road shows some promise of an eventual start, Mayor Fred Bishop reported to council Tuesday.

Both this project and flood control were approved by Alberni taxpayers a year ago last September. Neither has been started, and council as well as taxpayers have been growing steadily more concerned.

Not only are they reaching the end of their patience, but rapidly rising construction costs in all phases of the work have them worried in case additional funds will be required beyond the limit set by the original referendum.

Mayor Bishop reported he had met recently with M.L.A. Dr. Howard MacDiarmid, and stressed to him the urgency of the need for a suitable highway to replace the present two-lane entrance to Alberni.

Dr. MacDiarmid told Mayor Bishop he had both written and spoken to Highway Minister Phil Goggin about the matter.

The M.L.A. was advised that Johnston and River Road construction would proceed in conjunction with the flood control project, the mayor said.

Mayor Bishop said Dr. MacDiarmid understood the allotment for the roadwork has been included in the provincial budget for the coming year.

Ald. Marshall enquired if the mayor understood that the revised estimates had been included, or only the original ones. However, since Mayor Bishop had only a verbal report from Dr. MacDiarmid, he was unable to confirm which sum had been included.

Said Mayor Bishop, "We must consider what to do if the revised estimates come higher than allowed by the bylaw budget passed last year."

He said he hoped such an amount would not require another bylaw.

Ald. Charles Blair protested there should be no change in the city's share of costs, since an amount, not a percentage was stipulated in the agreement with the senior governments.

Nevertheless, the mayor replied there were some indications that a rise in the city's share might result.

The mayor said he had tried to make it clear that both the flood control project and the urgently needed road reconstruction are absolutely essential.

Port Alberni

Thain's Absence 'Disappointing'

PORT ALBERNI — Where was Port Alberni city manager Dennis Thain Tuesday?

The manager, who wrote an explosive report discounting criticism of the ambulance service, failed to attend a meeting Tuesday between ambulance critics and city officials.

Longshoreman Robert Dublin, who headed a citizens' group protesting aspects of the service, said outside the meeting he was "keenly disappointed" that Mr. Thain did not attend.

At the meeting Mayor Leslie Hamner indicated he agreed with the suggestion that ambulance operators should have First Aid certificates.

Mr. Dublin also reiterated his surprise that doctors should endorse the service. He said "They do not see how the patients are treated at the accident scene."

"They only see them at the hospital on their arrival, where doctors and other trained staff are present to supervise the care and unloading."

"When someone complains of his own personal treatment being unsatisfactory, no one makes any inquiry of other witnesses, but simply keeps saying 'the doctors say the service is satisfactory.'"

One thing Mr. Dublin does feel may have been accomplished — ambulance service may be established at the firehall location soon.

Commented Ald. Jim Macfie, "I do not think we could find a better person to operate the service than Mr. Miller."

Adverse criticism and publicity has made it most difficult to procure drivers, Mr. Miller said, and had caused him to lose at least one well-qualified man.

Mr. Dublin said all ambulance help should have valid

First Aid certificates, the ambulance service should be operated from the fire hall as soon as possible, and the rural areas should be approached to contribute a share of the costs of ambulance operation.

Indians Study Rulings

NANAIMO — Amendments to the Indian Act, and its effect on Canadian, B.C. and Island Indians will be part of the agenda at a forthcoming meeting of the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

Chief Wilson Bob of Nanaimo reserve said the meeting at the Duncan recreation hall Sunday will hear reports from the confederation of native Indians of B.C., of the Indian Eskimo Conference, and of the regional Indian advisory board meeting that was held in Winnipeg.

Chief Philip Paul of Saanich will report on the Winnipeg meeting.

Discussion arising from the Indian Eskimo Conference will, in part, concern the younger Indians, with nursery school and kindergarten developments.

The meeting will discuss the possibility of having teams of university students come to villages to help grade school students to beef up weak subjects, so that they might be able to enter a higher grade in the fall.

Chief Bob said that he hopes that all members, and those who wish to join should attend the Duncan meeting, which will start at 1:00 p.m.

At an in camera meeting Wednesday Chamber directors voted to ask Duncan and North Cowichan for more financial aid to keep the information office open.

The annual grant from the city now amounts to $600 of which $400 is given back in taxes. From the remaining $200 the chamber also pays the water bill.

MONEY NEEDED

The annual grant from North Cowichan is "just over $100," said Chamber president Sam Keeble.

He said 85 per cent of the 1966 budget was earmarked for the tourist bureau and "we just have to have more money from the city and the municipality to continue the operation of the bureau."

MEMBERS' FEES

The local Chamber's 1966 budget amounted to $5,600 and $4,200 was taken in in fees from members.

Mr. Keeble said "We shall ask the city and the municipality for a joint meeting so we can present our problem."

Mayor Jack Dobson of Duncan said "I spoke to Mr. Keeble some time ago and suggested a joint meeting."

"I don't think we just should hand them the money. I want to hear their story first."

"They were in the hole two years ago and we bailed them out."

CAREFUL STUDY

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton said "I would not recommend an additional grant without careful study."

"I want to point out we have to support two chambers of commerce." He referred to the Duncan-Cowichan and the Chemainus-Crofton Chambers.

Other items discussed at the luncheon meeting included a request to endorse the moving of the Expo 67 Indian pavilion to the Duncan area and to arrange the 1967 Chamber installation banquet.

The Chamber gave its endorsement to the request from the Cowichan Indians.

TOURIST SHOW

"I feel confident it will be possible for the Indians here to get the pavilion at the end of Expo 67," Mr. Keeble said.

"It would be great tourist attraction."

Cowichan Indian band council earlier announced it will apply to Ottawa for the pavilion to house Indian crafts and arts.

School Board Pushed

NANAIMO — An angry rural representative wants school board action before she gives the board names of persons involved in post-election controversy.

Mrs. R. E. Thomas was commenting following a meeting of school rural representatives here.

ONE IN, ONE OUT

The section says immediate relatives of persons having contracts with the board cannot be rural representatives.

Mrs. Thomas said the section is not detailed, and individual boards make rulings on cases.

She said in one case a man was allowed to be a representative, while another was turned down.

NAMES, PLEASE

At the meeting, heated discussion was ended when R. R. Gates moved the school board be given names, and investigate the matter.

But Mrs. Thomas said later there must be a ruling from the board on its interpretation, before she gives names.

Rural representatives favor an increase of foot candle minimums in lighting of school rooms.

MORE LIGHT

The National Building Code requirement is 70 candle power, but city building official said in some schools the lighting is much worse.

At Extension, he found as little as 20 at the blackboards. Seidom did he find more than 50.

Operation Big Sniff Underway

NANAIMO — RCMP snuffing stations are taking their toll. They are not only plucking the drinking drivers off the roads, but finding other drivers who are guilty of non-seasonal offences.

Two men were charged with driving while their right to do so had been suspended.

In separate cases, Raymond Seward, 40, and Leslie James Russell, 60, of Extension pleaded guilty.

Both were remanded until Dec. 29 and 28 respectively, so that their claims of extenuating circumstances might be investigated by a pre-sentence report.

A suggestion that has blossomed among business firms is buying tickets in bulk and giving them to employees or customers.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

What Colwood members have for many years thought was the worst green on their course is disappearing. The second hole is to have a new green behind the present one and the club's new green superintendent Sam Mackness has promised the club he will have the change completed and ready for play by next June.

This means it will be in play for the Willingdon Cup matches and the Canadian Amateur Championship next August.

The old green was unpopular with some members because its surface could not be seen for the second shot; it sloped away towards the back, and it was so undulating that it was difficult to find a reasonably fair place on which to cut the hole.

The new green will add about 30 yards to the hole making it about 400 yards long. The present length is 376 yards.

Club captain Derek Rhys-Jones says it will be a two level green not unlike the one at the third hole at Oak Bay. It will have a narrow entrance and it will be visible for the shot to the green.

It will also make the first three holes at Colwood all of about the same length.

There's one thing about winter golf in Victoria; it provides plenty of variety.

On Saturday afternoon at the Victoria Club I saw Oliver Anderson of the Shaughnessy club playing against Bill McColl in a short-sleeved sweater shirt.

Anderson, who was chairman of ticket sales for the Canadian Open at the Shaughnessy club was over here with other mainland golf officials to discuss next year's RCGA events in Victoria.

The visitors all expressed themselves as pleased with the alterations which the Victoria club has made to its course for the Commonwealth matches, and they were looking forward to playing at Colwood on the Sunday.

However, overnight the glorious warm weather of Saturday was replaced by torrential rain, and on Sunday the Vancouver men had to be content with a "look at" the course from the clubhouse windows.

Indeed, the Sunday rain was so heavy that most of the clubs went on to temporary greens for the hardy few who braved the storm, and among the weather casualties were the district buttons matches due to have been played at Gorge Vale.

In the open buttons, Bill Wakeham and Noel Pomfrey of the host club were the challengers against Victoria's George Bigelow and Vaughan Trapp. The match will now be postponed until after the New Year.

This week's big event is the final round of the first District Medal.

It is to be at Uplands Sunday and Bill Wakeham has such a tall tale that the Gorge Vale man can more or less play a "weekenders round" and be sure of the major prize.

Bill's two round total is 139 which puts him 11 strokes ahead of clubmate Gordon Jones and 12 ahead of Vaughan Trapp of Victoria.

Bill McColl, chairman of ticket sales for the Commonwealth matches and the Canadian Amateur and Willingdon Cup matches in Victoria next August, asks me to remind all golfers that the special low admission charge of $10 for the two weeks season ticket will be raised to the normal $12.50 at the end of the year.

The tickets are an admirable Christmas gift for anyone who is either a golfer or who wants to be part of the greatest golfing show Victoria has ever staged.

You can buy these tickets at the Store No. 14 in Centennial Square, at any local golf club or for assured Christmas delivery phone Bill McColl, EV 5-1471.

Ten dollars is the cost for 11 days of competitive play plus another four days of practice. It is a bargain and a gift that any golfer will cherish.

Larry McCooly and Ray Johnson of Colwood are still senior buttons holders in the Victoria district. They beat Gorge Vale challengers John Carlow and Stu Mitchell at the 17th at Colwood and they now face Eardley Wright and Bill Sanford of Victoria club at Gorge Vale.

the Uplands Golf Club Wednesday where plans for the fortnight of golf next August were discussed.

SUBSIDIES DISCUSSED

Harry Young, chairman of the Canadian amateur championship, spoke about subsidies.

"There has been some suggestion in one of our applications that we ought to stand on our feet," he said.

He was referring to a letter sent to the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday where Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox said he was opposed to anything which could be construed as direct subsidy.

Chairman Young had suggested there were several ways in which the Greater Victoria communities could help.

COX CRITICAL
He said he did not take issue with Reeve Cox that the golfers ought to stand on their own feet. But he added: "These are special events run in conjunction with the Canadian centennial and we very much hope that they will make a contribution to us, whether they call it a subsidy or whatever."

The Commonwealth will be held at the Victoria club and will include representatives from Great Britain, Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

The provincial Willingdon Cup team championship will follow and the fortnight's play will end with the Canadian Amateur at Colwood Aug. 14-15.

Players on Move With Four Trades

With the inter-league trading period in major league rapidly coming to an end, two trades were announced today.

California Angels swapped Norm Siebern, veteran first baseman to San Francisco in exchange for Len Gabrielson an outfielder.

Siebern, who is 33, had a .247 batting average last season while Gabrielson batted .217 in 94 games with the Giants.

Chicago White Sox traded veteran catcher John Romano to St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Don Dennis and outfielder Walter Williams.

TOPPED LEAGUE
Williams batted .330 for Indianapolis of the Pacific Coast Baseball League to lead the PCL in hitting.

Romano, 32, spent the last two seasons with the White Sox on his second tour of duty with the club, which re-acquired him from the Cleveland Indians.

Romano batted .231 last season and hit 15 home runs in 122 games.

BUSTLE BEVANS, general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers named eight young pitchers who may take the retired Sandy Koufax spot as a Dodger starting pitcher.

MOELLER AND WILLHITE
Bevans said the Dodgers can call on Joe Moeller, Bill Singer, Nick Willhite, Bruce Brubaker, Dick Calmus, Allan Foster, Bill Larkin or John Duffie to join the holdover starters of Don Drysdale, Claude Osteen and Don Sutton.

The Dodgers had tried, early in the trading period, to try to acquire Dick Ellsworth who was subsequently traded to Philadelphia for Ray Culp.

TOO MUCH
Bevans said "we could have gotten Ellsworth from the Cubs but they wanted reliever Bob Miller or Wes Parker and I wasn't about to give up either one of them."

"So we decided it might be just as well to give some of the youngsters a chance. To see if they have the ability to pitch in the big leagues."

'We're Number 1' Chant Sends Rangers to Win

MONTREAL 1, CHICAGO 3
BOSTON 1, TORONTO 2
DETROIT 1, NEW YORK 4

The amazing New York Rangers, spurred on by a noisy crowd chanting "We're No. 1," maintained sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League Wednesday night by clobbering the Detroit Red Wings, 4-1, as Rod Gilbert scored two goals.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Rangers, who continued their finest start in over two decades as Don Pappin's pass and tucked the puck into the net before goaltender Gerry Cheevers could move.

Just a minute earlier, Cheevers had made two remarkable saves on Pappin, including a sparkling glove save from close range.

Shack put the Maple Leafs in front at 9:26 of the middle period with his fifth goal of the season. John Brennan man dropped a pass to Shack who fired a 30-foot shot past Cheevers.

Ex-Leaf Stewart quickly tied the score, drilling a 40-footer which eluded Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower.

Goals by Kenny Wharram and Dennis Hull carried the Chicago Black Hawks to a 2-1 win over the Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night to preserve their share of second place in the National Hockey League race.

The win was the first for the Hawks in three games and their third victory in four outings against the Canadiens this year.

The triumph kept the Hawks in a second place tie with Toronto in the league race, trailing the leading New York Rangers by one point.

Wharram netted his 14th goal to open the Chicago scoring midway through the first period when he got a goalmouth pass from league-leading scorer Stan Mikita. Dennis Hull talked early in the second period when he tipped in a shot from the point by Doug Jarrett.

Bobby Rousseau got Montreal's only score on a short flip after Jean Beliveau stole the puck in the Chicago end in the final four minutes of the second period.

Both goalies, Dennis DeJordy for Chicago, and Charlie Hodge for Montreal, played brilliantly. The Canadiens, outskated by the Hawks in the first period, came to life thereafter and had 32 shots on the Chicago net.

Chicago had 28 tries on the Montreal cage and Hodge made numerous difficult stops.

Marshall and Phil Goyette also scored. The crowd saw the Wings, held to a third period goal by Alex Delvecchio, suffer their 13th road loss in a row.

Gilbert now has scored seven goals in his last four games and his total of 15 for the season is the best mark in the league even though he is playing on an ailing ankle.

Marshall's goal was his 14th of the season.

DOMINATED
The Rangers completely dominated the first two periods and only superb goal-tending by Detroit goalie Roger Crozier, who had been benched in two of the last five games for erratic performances, prevented the score from being higher.

All four Ranger goals came on point-blank shots that Crozier never had a chance at, and he made a number of spectacular saves.

Ed Glavin had an easy time in the Ranger nets the first two periods when the Red Wings made a total of 14 shots. He was pressed a bit in the third period when Detroit made 14 more, but he stopped them all, except for the lone Detroit goal at 2:32.

On Again, Off Again Describes Young Trade

DETROIT (CP) — The deal sending Howie Young to Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League has failed through.

The Red Wings announced today that Young is not available to them because of a prior agreement between Los Angeles Blades of the Western League and Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL.

The Wings said they know nothing of the private agreement when they traded two players to Los Angeles for Young earlier this week.

Young, a former Red Wings player, was traded by Chicago to Los Angeles in 1963 with the commitment that Chicago would have first call on his services if he ever returned to the NHL.

Sid Abel, coach and general manager of the Wings, said he had told him there was a prior agreement between Chicago and Los Angeles involving Young's major league services.

However, Abel said he did not know about this until after the deal had been made.

"The deal is off," Abel said. "We shook hands on it, but now all I know is that there was some special arrangement. Young, perennial bad boy of the NHL until he was shipped down, was involved in a trade early Monday that included the shipment of forward Murray Hall of Kirkland Lake, Ont., and Al Lebrun of Timmins, Ont. Detroit was to give up Hall and Lebrun from their American League farm team in Pittsburgh to Los Angeles.

ANOTHER DEAL
The trade was squelched when an undisclosed NHL team put in a claim for one of them and both were withdrawn from the waiver list.

Then the Wings worked out another deal with Los Angeles involving Bob McCord of Timmins and Alex Faulkner of Bishop's Falls, Nfld.

McCord was to have gone from Pittsburgh and Faulkner from Memphis to Los Angeles. Abel said McCord has been ordered to return to Pittsburgh and Faulkner to Memphis.

No Snow?
LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Racing resumed today at Laurel Race Course after snow forced cancellation of the nine-race card Tuesday.

A spokesman for Laurel said crews worked all through the night to get the four inches of snow off the track and parking lot.

New Racquet Club Approves $250,000

The board of the Victoria Racquet Club was authorized by the annual meeting Tuesday to spend another $250,000, as it becomes available on development of new facilities at the Gordon Head complex.

The completion of the first-stage program is scheduled for May.

The steady increase in membership indicates that the development will become an extension of the present building program.

The annual meeting was told of 225 new members joining, giving a total of about 450.

Dr. K. Greenwood was re-elected president. George MacMinn and R. C. "Doc" Miller were elected to the board and Andy Pitkethley, George Evans and Bert Matthews were re-elected.

They join Tut Jones, Ted Smythe, Jack Glover and Peter Meredith who were not up for re-election.

California goalie Jack McCarty, who turned aside 33 shots, came up with three break-away saves to keep the Seals in contention. Don Simmons in the Canucks' net was called on to make only 16 saves.

Mineral Riches Passing Forests

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Donald Brothers is on his way towards making mineral production the number one industry in British Columbia.

The 43-year-old lawyer from Trail announced last May he had his eye set on nudging the giant forest products industry out of first place as B.C.'s top money maker.

On Wednesday, when he announced a new all-time high mineral production record of $331,700,000 had been set this year, he thought he was close to achieving that goal.

"I'll bet you by the end of this year we'll be as close to them (forest products) as possible, if not ahead. But we'll have to wait until the end of the fiscal year which ends in March, when all the figures are in," said Mr. Brothers.

IT'S SPECTACULAR

"It's spectacular, almost unbelievable, what has happened since I became minister 2½ years ago," he said in an interview.

"Gross mineral production was then about $225,000,000 and we had no idea it would reach $300,000,000 in this short a period."

"And if the oil industry can drill wells this winter which will indicate the Alberta Rainbow field extends into northeastern British Columbia, the sky's the limit — there's no telling where we can go from here."

B.C.'s Bank Plans Win Royal Stamp

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than two years of parliamentary delays, the private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia became law Wednesday.

The measure received royal assent from Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, acting as deputy to the Governor-General, shortly after the Senate concurred with amendments passed earlier by the Commons.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The new Bank of Western Canada has received its certificate from the Treasury Board in Ottawa, president James E. Coyne announced Wednesday. The certificate was the last major official requirement to be met before the bank opens.

Vancouver Shocker

RATHIE BEATEN

VANCOUVER (Special) — Favored Mayor William Rathie apparently went down to defeat Wednesday in a two-way race for reelection.

The mayor-elect will be Tom Campbell, the only member of Vancouver's retiring city council from the sprawling east end of Canada's third largest community.

With all 102 polls reported, Campbell had 41,073 votes and Rathie 39,843—a margin of almost 1,200 for the young alderman.

Vancouver was for the first time electing all of its civic officials at once—mayor, aldermen and parks and school leaders.

The third mayoral candidate, 51-year-old socialist Jean Rands, had 6,086.

Election officials said about 32 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots.

Grits Won't Give In Air Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — The government stood off an angry opposition attack in an emergency Commons debate Wednesday and refused to back down from its determination to outlaw a countrywide strike of air traffic controllers set for next Tuesday.

Revenue Minister Benson and Transport Minister Pickersgill said flatly the cabinet will not agree to the controllers' demands—supported by opposition critics—for adoption of a wage report made last month by Judge John B. Robinson.

Mr. Benson, who was to continue negotiations with the controllers Wednesday night, said adoption of the judge's wage formula would mean a 40-per cent pay increase for the 800 control tower men over the last two years.

MEET AGAIN

The Wednesday night negotiations went on for 2½ hours and the parties agreed to meet again this afternoon. Mr. Benson stayed in his office awaiting a break in the deadlock, but did not personally attend the meeting.

He said progress is being made in the renewed negotiations.

The emergency debate erupted after the government gave notice of its plans to introduce legislation outlawing the strike and to seek overtime sitting Friday night and Saturday in order to get it through Parliament.

Details not revealed.

Commissioner Rules

Bug Tape Contents To Be Aired

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commissioner R. A. Sargent ruled Wednesday the tape recordings of bugged conversations at the Nov. 4-7 convention of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada will be made public.

He said counsel at the royal commission inquiry into the bugging and members of the press will be allowed to listen to the tapes. He ruled Tuesday that he would hear the tapes.

The commissioner made his decision after a lengthy argument from union lawyer John Laxton, who submitted that the inquiry's terms of reference did not give him the power to hear the tapes.

The six reels were seized Nov. 7 from room 309 of the Ritz Hotel. Private detectives Bud Graham and Richard Griffin said they recorded conversations picked up by hidden transmitters in second-floor rooms occupied by union delegates.

Mr. Graham said earlier he was hired to spy on the union by Pat O'Neal, western regional organizer of the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

WANTED EVIDENCE

He said he was first approached by Cpl. Harry Reed and Constable E. P. Oulette of the RCMP security and intelligence branch, then by Mr. O'Neal, who wanted evidence of a conspiracy against his union.

Mr. Laxton said the Canadian union did not want to appear it had something to hide in objecting to the playing of tapes, but said the hearing of the tapes would amount to an invasion of privacy.

"It would be denying the validity of the premise on which the inquiry is based—that the invasion of privacy is improper," the lawyer said.

Jets Came with Scream

HANOI — This North Vietnamese capital city was once more plunged into war

Bridge Hit

SAIGON (UPI)—A mile-long bridge which reaches into the Hanoi city limits was struck by explosives during U.S. air raids over North Vietnamese capital, informed sources said today.

The bridge, which carries both civilian and military traffic, was hit during the first of two successive air attacks on the Hanoi area, with the American bombing raids of Tuesday and Wednesday — the longest, the most violent and perhaps the most menacing to the future of this city's people. (See Page 3.)

The people Wednesday relived the tension and danger first experienced when Hanoi was bombed last June and July and when defences first were put to the test.

Discipline and vigilance now have become a national duty. Within a minute of the sirens wailing their alert, civilians took shelter in slit trenches. Lines of bicycles and pedicabs were abandoned, as were two precious baskets of bananas underneath my hotel window by a peasant woman.

From every house men rushed out wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles. They took up positions behind trees and watched the first aircraft approach. I saw my hotel barman turn soldier as he loaded his gun and prepared to take aim at the raiders.

The sirens gave plenty of warning as soon as the aircraft had come within 20-to-30 kilometers (12-to-21 miles).

Watching the raid with me from the hall of the hotel were two Indian and one Polish member of the International Commission. Air raid defence personnel drove away all observers during the raid.

An official interpreter came to my second-floor balcony and said to me politely but firmly — "you are a foreigner, we are responsible for your safety to the press service of the ministry of foreign affairs."

Then the raid began. The first wave was heralded by a crescendo of screaming which became almost unbearable as the flight of aircraft passed over the centre of the city. The anti-aircraft guns, which had been firing a few sporadic bursts here and there, suddenly became deafening as they joined with the burst of explosions. The men behind the trees and crouching by walls joined in with rifle fire.

Letter Kept Secret?

Education Minister Charges Politics

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Education Minister Peterson wonders if politics is causing a breakdown in communication between his department and the residents of Sooke school district.

He said Wednesday Sooke school board was advised some time ago that its $2,165,200 referendum approved last Saturday might not be carried out until there is an improvement in the international money situation.

But this form letter, sent to the boards of all districts in B.C. where school referendums were to be held, apparently was not passed on to the voters of Sooke school district until the referendum received an overwhelming approval at the polls.

Sooke school board chairman John Bartanus, the unsuccessful New Democratic Party candidate for Esquimalt in the Sept. 12 provincial election, unleashed a tirade against the government during Tuesday night's school board meeting.

"If they can find money for blacktop there must be a place somewhere in their budget for education," he was quoted as saying.

Mr. Peterson said Wednesday it appeared "from the impression conveyed in the press" that the Sooke school problem has been turned into a political football.

He said he wondered why the Sooke school board waited until after the people had voted before releasing the contents of his form letter to the public.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged that unless B.C.'s school districts are provided with the buildings they need "chaos will develop throughout the province."

"We need the schools desperately. We need them a damn sight more than we need some of the pulp mills which are being built," the NDP leader said.

Mr. Strachan said a delay in the school building program would cause overcrowding and a lack of programming, and would prevent pupils from getting the basic education they need to allow them to go on to higher education.

The education minister,

however, argued that his department has already approved some $50,000,000 worth of school construction this year, which is $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 more than was approved in 1965.

He said $43,349,154 in school referendums were approved by the electorate in this month's civic elections and that "my department is reviewing all the requests being made by the boards, trying to place them on a priority basis — in an endeavor to insure that necessary classroom facilities are provided."

The $2,165,200 Sooke referendum will be considered along with all the other districts, he added.

The priority system for school building in B.C. was announced by Mr. Peterson at the B.C. School Trustees' convention in Penikese last October.

Every school district which held a referendum this month was advised accordingly about the "very uncertain outlook which now hangs over the capital market."

Each board was told in the form letter that even if its referendum was approved by the voters "the board must be aware that the implementation may not be feasible until a vastly improved situation develops in the capital money market."

Mr. Peterson said this means a setback, but not necessarily a complete cut-off, in school construction until the bond market improves.

He said the government has authorized about $5,000,000 worth of school construction since his policy statement in October.

The $43,349,154 in referendums awaiting government approval are for projects which will meet B.C.'s elementary and secondary school needs for the next three-year period, not just next year, Mr. Peterson said.

Bartanus

First Time Last Night

Sooke School Board chairman John Bartanus denied Education Minister Peterson's "political football" charge Wednesday.

"The first time I saw that letter — or even heard anything about it — was last night (Tuesday)," said Mr. Bartanus.

"He's scraping the bottom of the barrel when he uses that excuse for curtailing school construction in this district or any other."

Mr. Bartanus said the board had warnings earlier that non-essential buildings such as gymnasiums and activity rooms would be deferred. Now the building ban has apparently been extended, he observed.

"What are we going to do with the 450 extra pupils we expect next September: hang them on nails?" asked Mr. Bartanus.

He said that cutting back on education spending will only perpetuate B.C. economic problems.

Students Face School by Shift In Eight Areas

By BILL STAVDAL

Greater Victoria faces swing shifts in eight elementary schools next September if the planned Christie Point and Newton elementary schools aren't ready by then, school board officials warned on Wednesday.

Saanich School District is relatively well off but the Sooke system also faces critical crowding, according to a survey by the Colonist.

In Victoria, trustee Peter Bunn issued the warning after consultation with district superintendent Joseph Chell.

He spoke after education department heads confirmed Wednesday that only the most essential school projects are being approved because of a shortage of money.

Most urgent projects in Greater Victoria are the planned $1,000,000 elementary-junior secondary school at Christie Point in View Royal, and the $600,000 Newton Elementary School at Newton and Richmond in the Saanich peninsula.

The department has been withholding permission to go ahead with Newton school; plans for Christie Point school will go to the department later this month.

Fairey Plant Closing

By BOB PETHICK

Fairey of Canada Ltd. plant at Patricia Bay Airport is going out of business — at least temporarily.

Plant manager G. A. Marr indicated Wednesday that the plant would close down and not reopen until business in the aviation field picked up.

"Fairey of Canada Ltd., western division, with facilities at Victoria International Airport, is suspending operations until business activities on the West Coast in their particular field will warrant reactivation of the facility," said Mr. Marr in a prepared statement.

SOME RETAINED

"Certain personnel will be retained to fulfill continuing military commitments," he added.

The plant employs about 25 men. In its heyday, 300 men were employed. The shutdown will take place at the end of January.

Fairey here was best known for converting standard aircraft to water bombers. Highlight in conversion jobs was a contract to convert three huge Martin Mars flying boats.

Noisy New Machinery Keeps Neighbors Awake

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

Victoria Plywood Ltd. is making an effort to control fly ash and dust but residents in the View Royal area are far from content. They are being kept awake at night by the racket of new machinery installed in the plant, they complain.

Members of the Greater Metropolitan Board of Health were told Wednesday, in a letter from W. G. Holmes and signed by 29 residents, that the noise of new machinery recently installed in the plant murdered sleep.

People whose bedroom windows faced on the mill side were not able to sleep at all and people whose bedrooms faced away from the mill got little rest.

Mr. Holmes, who lives on View Royal Avenue, suggested that perhaps the B.C. Research Council should be approached to take decibel level readings in the area.

"There is nothing in the health act regarding the prevention of noise. Perhaps the situation should be handled by means of a local bylaw," the senior medical officer of health, Dr. J. L. M. Whitebread, suggested.

Coun. Arthur Mebe of Esquimalt was justified. There had been no word from adjacent hotels on the subject over the years, he pointed out.

"What View Royal should have done was come in with Esquimalt where it would have had the benefit of an anti-noise bylaw."

The board will write the plywood firm asking if anything can be done to cut down the noise.

Half Goal Awarded Teachers

Greater Victoria School District settled two 1967 pay contracts Wednesday, one by arbitration and one by negotiation.

An arbitration board gave the district's 1,093 teachers a salary increase averaging 8 per cent. Last Wednesday the school board ratified an agreement giving 255 maintenance workers a 9-per-cent increase spread over two years.

BETTER THAN HALF
The 8-per-cent increase is a little better than half the 15 per cent originally asked by the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association. The board first offered 5.34 per cent.

Before the matter went to arbitration the board offered six per cent and the teachers came down to 11 per cent.

The three-man arbitration board was headed by Victoria lawyer Gerald Sullivan.

School board spokesman Kenneth Murphy dissented on one provision of the award, a bonus of $200 annually to teachers holding a master's degree.

The teachers had asked for creation of a new, higher-paid category for teachers with the degree. The board refused the request but granted the bonus.

SIX-STEP SCALE
A teacher is paid according to a scale which has six categories based on educational qualifications. In addition, pay rises annually for up to 14 years.

Most of the 1967 pay increase will go to teachers at the bottom of the scale. Some will get raises of 10 per cent.

For teachers at the top of the ladder, immediate 1967 raises will average about 7 per cent.

PROPOSAL LOST
Increments were increased slightly, but the arbitration board rejected the teachers' proposal for reducing the number of years before maximum salary is reached.

The other agreement is with the Greater Victoria School Board Employees' Association. It gives wage increases averaging 5 per cent in 1967 and

More Ships Coming

Destroyer-Escorts to Head West

Two more destroyer-escorts will be added to the Pacific Maritime Command this spring.

The ship will be transferred from Halifax to the west coast, arriving sometime in March. Personnel to man the ships is already being mustered here.

A third destroyer-escort will also arrive in Esquimalt from Halifax in the spring but this will be for refitting at HMC Dockyard.

THIRD STAYING?
It was not known whether the third ship will remain with the Pacific Maritime Command after refit. Armed Forces information officer Lt.-Cmdr.

Ray Wormald confirmed word that the three ships would be coming to the west coast but added he could not confirm which ships they would be.

It is believed the two ships that will be joining the fleet are the HMCS Algonquin and Crescent. The ship coming in for refit is believed to be HMCS Columbia.

DOING OWN WORK
Transfer of the ships and the refit at HMC Dockyard are in keeping with statements made by Maritime Commander Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien during a visit here in September.

Admiral O'Brien said in future the navy would do its own refitting and repair work.

He was answering a question on whether there would be layoffs in the dockyard following retirement of all but one of the Pacific Command's 22-year-old ocean escort fleet.

Pacific Maritime Commander Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles said during the press conference that previously there had not been enough personnel in HMC Dockyard to carry out major repair work.

Admiral O'Brien said ships from the east coast would be transferred to the West Coast to bolster Pacific Command and that eventually both commands would share the helicopter destroyers now limited to the east coast.

Arrival of the two ships will boost the west coast's destroyer-escort force to seven ships.

Health Cost Plan Forthcoming Soon

A fair cost-sharing formula which will be the basis of a regional district board take-over from the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health will probably be forthcoming soon, board members were told Wednesday.

Board chairman Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich said he attended a meeting of the Greater Victoria Inter-municipal Committee the day before, at which it was determined to press for action on the matter.

Earlier, the regional board discussed the possible take-over and decided it wanted no part of it until some sort of an equitable cost-sharing formula was worked out by the provincial government.

With the formal withdrawal of Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt from the health district on Dec. 13, the board as such will cease to exist.

The break-up was brought about by the fact that the three urban communities which are withdrawing pay for health costs on a $2-per-capita basis while the other seven rural communities of the board pay between 30 and 40 cents a head of population.

B.C.'s new health minister, Wesley Black, said Wednesday that he will get around to the metro matter "as soon as I possibly can."
